Secret U.S. Papers Used By Red Spies

Found in Communist Section of Germany, Sen. McCarthy Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis) said today a number of secret Army documents dealing with radar and other matters "turned up" in the Russian-occupied section of Germany and "were used by the Communists."

This followed a statement by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill) yesterday that 26 of 57 top secret documents missing from the Army Signal Corps radar laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N. J., were found in the Russian zone.

In Washington, the Army said it had no information on the finding of any such papers in Germany.

McCarthy is chairman of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee conducting closed hearings in New York into the possibility of Communist subversion at Fort Monmouth.

No Comment on Number

"We have completely convincing testimony that some of those documents on radar and other matters did turn up in East Berlin, but as to the number, I will not comment," McCarthy told newsmen prior to today's subcommittee session.

Radar is used as part of a defense network to detect the approach of enemy aircraft—in short, a defense mechanism against atom attack.

Two of five civilians technical experts who were employed at Fort Monmouth were scheduled for questioning by the subcommittee today.

They are Hyam Gerber Yamins, a radar specialist who was assigned by the Army Signal Corps to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a liaison officer, and Harold Ducore, an electronics engineer.

Defense Secretary Wilson, asked yesterday in Washington whether he thought espionage was involved at Ft. Monmouth or whether the matter concerned security leaks, declared:

"It looks like it might be worse than just a security leak."

The Chicago Tribune today quoted Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill) as saying in a speech last night that 26 of 57 documents he said were missing from the Ft. Monmouth Signal Corps laboratory were found recently in the Russian zone of Germany. Dirksen reportedly added after his talk that the papers were related to U. S. radar defenses.

McCarthy, speaking to newsmen in New York after yesterday's committee session, said a former Signal Corps lieutenant gave testimony about the missing documents.

Could Be Dangerous

"If they got into the hands of an enemy," McCarthy said, "they could be extremely dangerous to this country."

McCarthy would not say whether the documents are missing from Ft Monmouth or from some other Army installation. He said the former officer, whose name was not disclosed, provided these additional details:

Several civilian employes of the Signal Corps asked that a search be made for the missing records. The search started in 1951 and still is continuing.

No certificates of destruction had ever been issued for the documents but certain registry notes on their contents were destroyed with the approval of two unidentified Army officers.

U.S. Workers Must Testify Or Be Ousted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today made it an offense for government employees to refuse to testify before congressional committees on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

The President issued an executive order adding this to the existing grounds for dismissal of a federal worker for security reasons.

The order permits action against the individual for:

"Refusal by the individual, upon the ground of constitutional privilege against self-incrimination to testify before a congressional committee regarding charges of his alleged disloyalty or other misconduct."

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said this was an effort to "close up all possible loopholes" in the government's security machinery.

He said Atty.-Gen. Brownell would enlarge upon the Fifth Amendment question at a speech this afternoon at the National Press Club.

'THANKS, SENATOR'. That's what Stanley Orr, 4, could say to Ohio's new senator, Thomas A. Burke, for that spoonful of cereal. But Burke says he probably will remain just "Gramps" to Stanley, and his other grandchildren, Mary Virginia, 1, (center) and Barbara Lee, 5. Looking on are Mrs. Burke (right) and Mrs. Jo Ann Orr, mother of the three children. Family is pictured in Cleveland where Burke has been mayor.

22,300 To Be Quizzed

Reds To Start Interviews With POWs on Thursday

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The potentially explosive face to face meetings of Communist explanation teams with 2,300 former Red soldiers who renounced communism while in Allied captivity begins tomorrow in an atmosphere charged with tension.

The Communists notified the Korean repatriation commission today they would start the long delayed interviewing of anti-Red POWs in an effort to coax them back to their native lands.

Allies in No Hurry

The U. N. Command told the commission it will not begin tomorrow. The Allies presumably are in no hurry to start meeting with the 23 Americans, 1 Briton and 335 South Koreans who refuse repatriation, a small number in comparison to the thousands of Chinese and North Koreans who spurned return to their homelands.

The Red persuasion efforts will begin at 8 a. m. (6 p. m. EST Wednesday) and last eight hours daily.

The Reds told the commission they would concentrate first on Chinese POWs and hoped to interview 1,000 the first day.

That the Reds chose to meet first with the Chinese came as no surprise. Throughout the drawnout negotiations, they indicated they were more interested in getting back the Chinese—who supposedly went to Korea as "volunteers" rather than the North Koreans.

May Get Several Tries

The Communists will have 14,500 Chinese and 7,800 North Koreans to interview. If they maintain the 1,000 daily rate, the Reds conceivably could get three or even four cracks at each man before explanations end Dec. 24.

However, Allied observers felt the Reds would rush through some captives and work hard on others—particularly the leaders. If the Reds, they said, could win over the leaders, the rest probably would follow.

The repatriation commission met to iron out details for the explanations.

Election Won In Wisconsin By Democrat

EAU CLAIRE, Wis. (AP)—Rural west-central Wisconsin elected a Democrat to Congress Tuesday for the first time in its history.

And the Republican who lost said the results "showed clearly that the farmer and laboring man does not like the present administration's farm policy."

Thus ended one of the most unusual elections in Wisconsin's unpredictable political history.

Former Progressive

The man who won the special election for Ninth District representative to succeed the late Merlin F. Hull, a Republican and former Progressive, was Lester R. Johnson, 52, a small town district attorney from Black River Falls and also a former Progressive.

The loser was State Sen. Arthur L. Padrutt, 36, who has spent 11 years in the Wisconsin Legislature and like Hull and Johnson also a former Progressive.

Johnson keyed his campaign to a promise to vote the same way as Hull had voted. He also denounced the administration's farm policy.

Padrutt never discussed his background as a Progressive nor did he mention Hull while he stumped the district, but stressed that he was "four square" behind President Eisenhower and his administration.

Vote Turnout Heavier

It had been anticipated that the vote would be very light and the Republicans predicted not more than 30,000 votes would be cast. In contrast the election drew nearly 50,000 voters, which however, is less than one-third of the estimated 150,000 eligible electors in the district.

Unofficial returns in 39 of 401 precincts in 11 counties that make up the district gave: Johnson 27,790; Padrutt 21,097.

The two missing precincts were from small rural communities which would have little bearing on the result.

Guiana Cane Fields Burning

Reds Put Torch To Sugar Crop in Revolt

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—Smoke from burning canefields hung over Georgetown today, pointing up a threat of economic distress to this troubled British colony.

Fires blazed on at least two nearby sugar plantations after workers walked out in protest against the British ouster of government ministers from the colony's left-wing People's Progressive party (PPP).

With strikes paralyzing or slowing most of the sugar industry, British Guiana's principal source of income, observers predicted the pinch would come soon. Businessmen already complained of a drastic drop in trade.

The British kicked out PPP Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan and five other ministers from the party Thursday, charging they were plotting to turn British Guiana into a Communist state. The PPP retaliated by calling a general strike but so far only the sugar workers have responded.

The British governor, Sir Alfred Savage, invoked his emergency powers last night to keep the walkout from spreading. He banned strikes by transport, shipping, harbor, communication, postal and public utility workers.

Judge Bryant Declines To Quash Indictments

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Common Pleas Judge William C. Bryant has refused to abolish indictments against three Columbus residents who refused to answer questions before the Ohio UnAmerican Activities Commission last year.

He overruled demurrers filed by Mrs. Anna H Morgan, Robert E. Lee Terrill and David Jackson. Attorneys for the three questioned legality of the commission in their fight to quash the indictments returned in May 1952.

Top-Drawer Talks Called Over Trieste

Conferences Likely To Determine Next Move on West's Part

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles flies to London tonight for conferences which may determine the next move by the United States and Great Britain in the explosive Trieste dispute with Yugoslavia.

U. S. officials said there is plenty of time to seek a diplomatic solution of the issue in the face of warlike threats by Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito.

May Be Months

They noted there is no deadline for removal of about 7,000 British and American troops from Zone A and their replacement by Italians. Tito has said he will counter the shift in occupation troops with force. U. S. and British diplomats alike said it would be two or three months, possibly even longer, before the change is made.

The State Department insisted Dulles' trip to London for Big Three foreign ministers' talks, although it came as a surprise, was not the result of any sudden emergency.

Dulles, due to leave tonight, conferred for an hour yesterday with Yugoslav Foreign Secretary Koca Popovic, who pressed his government's proposal for a meeting of the United States, Britain, Italy and Yugoslavia on control of Trieste in light of the new U. S.-British policy.

Policy Outlined

This policy, announced six days ago, calls for removal of American and British forces from Zone A and giving administration of the zone to Italy. Zone A includes the city of Trieste and some adjacent territory; Zone B, comprising the rest of the 320-square-mile area, is occupied by Yugoslav troops.

War on some scale could result if Tito carried out his threat to march into Zone A when Italian troops move in.

Russia's efforts to exploit the situation, in an attempt to make the most of trouble in the loosely organized camp of anti-Soviet nations, was no surprise here.

Popovic said Dulles told him he could give no answer on the proposal for a four-nation conference because "he has to consult on that issue with the other governments concerned."

State Department Silent

Popovic, however, quoted Dulles as promising the sugestion would be given urgent consideration. The State Department had no comment.

Diplomatic informants said they regarded it certain the Yugoslav proposal would be considered at London, and that no decision would be made before that.

There was no indication thus far of any change in the U.S.-British decision to get out of Trieste and promote, if possible, a direct settlement between Yugoslavia and Italy.

At the U. N. yesterday, Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky pictured his country as the true

Birthday Message

U.S. Wants Only Peace, Eisenhower Tells World

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower is 63 today, and his birthday message to the world is this: America wants peace—nothing else.

He voiced that sentiment last night at a mammoth celebration in this little Pennsylvania town staged by the state's Republicans. It was a lavish affair, attended by some 20,000 persons.

800 Cakes Baked

Pennsylvania housewives baked 800 cakes for the occasion, and there was a 25-foot-high cake of wood as a crowning gesture.

Today Eisenhower is back in Washington observing the day with a business-as-usual schedule. Tonight he will leave again—for a seven-day journey to the central and Southern States.

He was greeted last night at the 7,000-seat Hershey Arena by a crowd chanting, "We want Ike."

Accepting as a birthday gift the establishment of an international scholarship foundation, the President said the world's greatest need is understanding among nations. He declared:

Need Understanding

"What we need is understanding, and this understanding will come from these young men and women as they go back and forth . . . and others . . . will carry back with them the skills and techniques of our country and ours will bring back the skills and techniques of another country.

"But that will take understanding, an understanding of America's heart: that she wants peace—nothing else."

For Eisenhower and his Mamie, their motor trip from Washington through the autumn-tinted Maryland and Pennsylvania countryside was only an introduction to a night of fun and frolic which enriched the party's coffers by a net of about $400,000.

Strictly Non-Partisan

So far as Pennsylvania politics went, it was strictly nonpartisan from the President's standpoint. He gave no one leader in the state's mixed-up Republican political situation a smile a whit wider than another.

The Eisenhowers rode through cheering throngs to the Hershey stadium, where most of the state's college and high school bands seemed to have gathered to put on a lengthy program in the chilly night air.

The Eisenhowers ate chicken with their fingers and munched pretzels while the bands played.

When the Penn State College band gave out with "Eyes of Texas" Eisenhower stamped his feet in time to the music. The band was marking his Texas birth. When it swung into the "Wedding March" in observance of his marriage, Ike clapped Mamie on the shoulder and grinned broadly.

From the stadium, the Eisenhowers drove to a nearby circus

Debate Due Thursday

U.N. Cool to Soviet Bid For Independent Trieste

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., (AP)—Diplomats at the U. N. reacted cooly today to Soviet demands that the Security Council set up an international administration for disputed Trieste and make the territory independent.

As the council prepared to meet Thursday to debate the surprise Russian proposal, observers predicted it would come little nearer adoption than previous attempts to get East-West agreement over the future of the region at the head of the Adriatic.

The Russian proposal in effect called for revival of the provision—stymied by the East-West cold war—of the 1947 Italian peace treaty on Trieste. Because of the deadlock, British and American troops have continued to occupy the northern part of the area, including Trieste port, and Yugoslav forces the southern zone.

The current furor was touched off by the British-American announcement last week they were withdrawing as soon as possible from their zone and turning it over to Italy.

The United States, Yugoslavia and Italy all were markedly unenthusiastic about the Russian move to bring the issue before the U. N.

A U. S. spokesman said he had little confidence the Russians were trying to bring about the "peaceful settlement" the United States and Britain say they are seeking.

Informed sources said Yugoslavia's delegates had tried to keep Russia's Andrei Vishinsky from throwing in his resolution and were adopting an attitude of indifference toward it.

Italian circles said their government flatly opposes the Russian resolution. They added that Italy,

Thousands Demonstrate In Belgrade

Anti-West Feeling Runs High; Tito, Top Lieutenants Confer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Irate Yugoslavs stepped up their anti-Western demonstrations over Trieste as President Tito today awaited the outcome of U. S. Secretary Dulles' trip to London.

With thousands of shouting demonstrators storming Belgrade's streets, the Yugoslav chief assembled his top lieutenants for a conference last night shortly after it was announced that the Big Three foreign ministers would confer Friday in the British capital.

May Send Envoy

Although there was no word on what the Cabinet discussed, it was thought Tito might be considering sending a special representative to press Yugoslavia's viewpoint on the ministers. Tito previously had called for a four-power conference of the United States, Britain, Italy and Yugoslavia to search for a solution of the explosive issue.

There also was no official reaction to Russia's surprise demand at the United Nations that the Security Council quickly name an international governor for the entire Trieste territory and make it independent. Informed sources in New York, however, described Yugoslavia's U. N. representatives as "indifferent but not too happy" over the proposal.

Warn of Trouble

High Yugoslav officials here continued to warn of serious trouble to come if Britain and America carry outt their plan to give the Allied-occupied Zone A of Trieste to Italy.

Tens of thousands of angry citizens last night staged Belgrade's biggest mass protest so far against the Western decision. Repeatedly they howled:

"Give us rifles."

"Beat up the Italian thieves."

"Down with Italy."

"We'll give up our lives, but not an inch of Trieste."

Earlier yesterday crowds had attacked the British reading room and manhandled an American student and a Yugoslav who entered the U. S. Information Service headquarters. The USIS director was beaten up Monday.

Threaten To Use Force

Tito has publicly proclaimed his country's determination to send its armed forces into Zone A—including the strategic port city of Trieste—if and when Italy takes over the area.

Inhabitants of Trieste's Zone A, meanwhile, carried on quietly under an Allied ban on public meetings. The ban was announced last night by Maj. Gen. Sir John Winterton, British military commander in the Allied zone after six parties opposing transfer to the area to Italy called a mass demonstration.

There is considerable sentiment within the city of Trieste to keep the 7,000 Allied occupation troops there and to maintain it as an international port.

This was the idea when the 320-square-mile Trieste territory was taken from Italy after World War II and divided between Allied and Yugoslav occupation forces. The 1947 Italian Peace Treaty called for its establishment as an international free territory.

Under the pact's terms, however, the Security Council was supposed to name an international governor for the territory. Russia and the West have never been able to agree on a man for the job.

Wilson Dodges Questions Over Defense Slash

Silent on Possibility Of Cuts After Meeting With Security Council

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military's first rough guess about what will be needed in way of men, munitions and money for next year apeared today to have encountered a doubtful response from the top-level National Security Council.

Secretary of Defense Wilson and a score of his chief uniformed and civilian advisers went to the security council meeting yesterday with unanimous but preliminary recommendations of the Joint Chiefs of Staff on force levels and probable commitments for the year beginning next July.

President Eisenhower presided at the meeting, which was long.

Holds News Conference

Back at the Pentagon in the afternoon, Wilson held his weekly news conference. A few weeks ago he had hinted about the possibility of clipping a couple of billion dollars off military spending next fiscal year.

But, fresh back from the security council meeting, he talked cautiously about it being "too early" to guess the size of next year's outlay.

He subscribed to a pronouncement earlier in the day by White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty that speculation on the military budget might be premature and possibly inaccurate. Wilson sparred with all questioners.

He conceded that the Joint Chiefs arrived at force size estimates unhampered by considerations of economics. This wasn't unusual. The Joint Chiefs are supposed to look only upon bald military necessities.

U. S. Defense Studied

A reporter, evidently having in mind the spectre of the Russian atomic menace and what can be done to prevent or fight it off, wanted to know how high continental defenses loomed in the "new look" which the Joint Chiefs have been giving the military situation.

"Very high; it's up in the top of the tree," Wilson answered cryptically.

That could mean that continental defense might have been a perplexing and costly item in the recommendations of the Joint chiefs one which the security council thought might warrant still another look.

Burglar Stabs Coed at OSU, Police Report

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Police said today an Ohio State University coed was stabbed by a burglar in her home last night.

Mrs. Nancy King, 18, whose husband was away from home on a night job, was treated for wounds in her left chest, left arm and hand at White Cross Hospital and then released.

She told officers she was awakened about 10.30 p. m. and saw a man standing by her bed. She screamed and struggled with the man before he fled through a rear door.

Mrs. King, a student in elementary education, said she thought the man had stabbed her before she awakened, but that she was not certain. She said nothing was missing from her apartment.

Long Spell of Fair Weather Continues

By The Associated Press

There was little change in the nation's weather today, indicating another day just as pleasant as yesterday in most sections of the country.

Skies were clear in nearly all areas except in the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandle which reported cloudy weather.

There was a marked warming over the upper Mississippi Valley and western Great Lakes region with readings up 25 degrees in some sections.

Dressen Quits Dodgers' Helm

Manager, Front Office Can't Agree on Terms

BROOKLYN (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers today dropped Charlie Dressen as manager.

Dressen led the Dodgers to National League championships in 1952 and 1953, but lost to the New York Yankees in the World Series both years.

The failure of Dressen and the Dodgers to come to terms for 1954 was a complete surprise to baseball observers, who expected Dressen to return at an increase in pay.

Merchants Here Plan Christmas Parade, Downtown Decorations

Plans for the annual Christmas program of the Marion Chamber of Commerce were discussed in a dinner meeting of the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber Tuesday night at Hotel Harding.

Also under discussion was the annual Christmas parade to be held Nov. 28 Jack Lautenslager, assistant secretary of the Chamber, pointed out it was one of the few parades of its type in the country which has not become a strictly commercial enterprise.

Christmas decorations will be placed on Main and Center Streets from all four ends of town. The Christmas parade will be held the afternoon of Nov 28, beginning at 1 p m.

Lautenslager said after the meeting the parade would form on Park Blvd. The route of the march will be announced later, he added

He said with the continued help of the churches in the city, the parade could continue to be religious in nature.

Before discussion of the Christmas plans, George Hammond of the Ohio State Council Retail Merchants in Columbus urged those persons present to vote for the proposed constitutional amendment in November which would permit the issuance of bonds to improve the highway system in Ohio. He was introduced by Al Hamburg, chairman of the Retail Merchants.

Hamburg then introduced James Weir, promotion chairman for the Christmas program Weir introduced the chairmen of the various committees working on the parade and Christmas plans.

Movies of scenes in Marion, including local flower gardens, last year's Christmas parade, the Ice Follies Show, the Boy Scout pilgrimage to Harding Memorial, and other civic activities, were shown by H. M. Watson.

In the 17th century great trade fairs were held at Taos, New Mexico, rivaling those in Chihuahua, where goods were exchanged from all over the west.

Firemen Here Make 3 Runs

Called to Two Grass Blazes, Stove Blast

Marion firemen were called out three times during the last 24 hours, once after a stove exploded and twice to grass fires

A gas stove exploded at the residence of Emerson Heilman of 232 Ballentine Ave. at 7.25 p.m. last night Firemen from the Central and Mark St station answered the call They reported the explosion was apparently caused by a leaky valve. There was no fire and no loss was reported. The Marion Township pumper truck from the Mark St. station was used to answer the call.

Both grass fires occurred along railroad right of ways. One at 1 45 p.m. was about one-half mile long along the New YORK Central tracks northeast of Bennett St along Curve St It was answered by firemen from the W. Center St. Station The other was along the Erie Railroad tracks near Pole Lane on E. Fairground St at 3:25 p m. It was answered by the township truck and firemen from the Mark St. station No loss was reported in either fire.

Fire Chief Owen A Sifritt said today apparently both grass fires were caused by a weed killer being used by the railroads along the right of ways. A flame-thrower type of machine, it burns the weeds off along both sides and between the tracks as it travels along the tracks. Chief Sifritt said he would ask railroad officials to discontinue use of the machine because of the dry condition and the chance the grass fires may get out of control.

FOP Votes Against Attempt at Annual Halloween Parade

A decision not to hold a Halloween parade and party in Marion this year was announced today by Rollin D Beach Jr, president of Marion County Lodge No. 24, Fraternal Order of Police

He said the decision was made by lodge members recently after numerous discussions. Organization of the parade and party which during recent years had become an annual affair has become so large that FOP no longer has enough men to plan the affair properly, Beach said. He also noted that with the increased size of the parade and party each year the expenses have become too great for the lodge treasury to handle.

Last year a crowd estimated at 18,000 persons lined the parade route to the Coliseum and several hundred more watched the costume judging in the Coliseum. A total of 11 area bands participated in the parade.

This change in polling place was necessitated by the abandonment of Forest Lawn School this year.

States Balked at Federal Intervention

Greenlease Kidnaping Recalls Hectic Origin of FBI

By JAY G. HAYDEN

WASHINGTON (NANA)—Initial unpleasantness between Missouri police and J. Edgar Hoover's Federal Bureau of Investigation over who solved the Greenlease kidnaping case recalls the hectic events of the early 1930's which first put Hoover on the map as this nation's supreme Sherlock Holmes.

For more than a century after the United States was founded, it was a well-settled principle of constitutional law that handling of crime is largely a state and local responsibility. And public support of that doctrine became stronger than ever during the 1920's, due to the failures and scandals in enforcement of national prohibitin.

The Wickersham Commission, named by President Hoover to study ways and means of improving law enforcement, recommended in 1931 a greater centralization of authority in state officials and agencies.

Prohibition no doubt contributed to a sudden wave of violent crime coincident with the big depression of 1931-33. Bootleggers finding their previously lucrative trade lagging and ultimately ended altogether by repeal of the 18th amendment, turned to other forms of crookedness, including kidnaping for ransom.

Kidnapings during 1931 were estimated at 2,000 to 3,000 and the number rose even higher in 1932 and 1933.

CURIOUSLY, Missouri sparked the first drive for federal intervention based on a statement by St. Louis police that citizens had become so afraid of retaliation by criminals that only one kidnaping in 10 was reported. Sen. Pattersos (R., Mo.) and Rep. Cochran, a St. Louis Democrat, introduced in December, 1931, identical bills to make kidnaping involving transportation of the abducted across state lines a federal offense punishable by death.

The resposse was far from all favorable. Many local police chiefs scented a curtailment of their prerogatives, and the Federal Depattment of Justice was skeptical. Even Hoover, as head of an FBI then under 300 strong, emphasized his disinclination to trespass on traditional state and municipal rights.

But just as this debate was getting under way came a mighty sensation. On March 1, 1932, the infant son of Charles Lindbergh disappeared and was reported kidnaped. Just four days later the House passed the Patterson-Cochran bill, since known as the Lindbergh Law, and it went on to easy adoption by the Senate and signature by President Hoover. With later strengthening amendments the law now says "Whoever knowingly transports in interstate or foreign commerce, any person who has been unlawfully seized, confined, inveigled, decoyed, kidnaped abducted, or carried away and held for ransom or reward or otherwise, except in the case of a minor by a parent thereof, shall be punished (1) by death if the kidnaped person has not been liberated unharmed, or (2) by imprisonment for any term of years or for life, if the death penalty is not imposed.

"The failure to release the victim within seven days after he shall have been unlawfully seized . . . shall create a rebuttable presumption that such person has been transported in interstate or foreign commerce.

IT WAS THE LATTER paragraph which the FBI advanced as basis for contention that the Greenlease kidnaping fell within its jurisdiction, despite lack of any evidence that the transaction reached beyond Missouri state lines.

On the heels of the Lindbergh case President Roosevelt, in his annual message to Congress in January, 1934, asked for enactment of a whole series of extensions of federal police authority, prepared by a racket-investigating committee headed by Sen. Royal S. Copeland (D., N. Y.).

Again, a sensational criminal development helped it along. Following several inconclusive battles between John Dillinger's band of outlaws and local police, Mr. Roosevelt, on April 23, 1934, made known to chairman Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee his desire for quick enactment of the entire Copeland list of bills, plus several others in the same line.

These included authorization of the Attorney General to offer $25,000 reward for capture of a declared "public enemy" (Dillinger had been so labeled); making it a federal offense to kill a federal officer or rob a federal bank; the Lindbergh Act amendment making absence of a kidnaped person for seven days presumptive evidence that he or she had been carried across state lines; making any form of racketeering a federal offense if it touched more than one state; and extending the Dyer Act, against interstate transportation of stolen automobiles, to any merchandise, securities or money of the value of $5,000 or more.

ON THE FOLLOWING July 22, Dillinger was shot by FBI men as he emerged from a Chicago theater. The only federal crime with which he was charged was transportation in interstate commerce of a stolen automobile.

Until public opinion was aroused by Dillinger's exploits, many of the Roosevelt bills had been locked up in the House Judiciary Committee on the ground that they constituted invasion of state police power. Under stimulus of new laws expanding federal police power the FBI has increased its personnel from fewer than 300 in the final year of President Hoover's administration to approximately 13,000 today.

Indiana Man Pleads Not Guilty on Assault Charge

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—A 22-year-old former mental patient pleaded innocent yesterday to a charge of asaulting and attempting to rape an Akron, Ohio, coed.

Richmond Keith Locke was arrested last Wednesday. Police said he forced Nancy Mehle, 19, from the Earlham College campus and drove her to a lonely spot some five miles away.

Miss Mehle, released recently from a Richmond hospital where she recovered from a bad beating, said she talked her abductor out of raping her.

Reactions Vary On Lausche's Picking Burke

Naming of New Dealer To Senate Vacancy Generally Applauded

By The Associated Press

Mixed criticism and applause continued to stream from the typewriters of Ohio editorial writers following Gov. Frank J. Lausche's appointment Monday of Cleveland Mayor Thomas A. Burke to succeed the late Robert A. Taft as U. S. senator.

Most papers surveyed by The Associated Press looked favorably on the naming of the New Deal Democrat to the seat formerly held by "Mr. Republican." But The Ohio State Journal called it an appointment by Lausche to "pay off his political debts in Cleveland."

The Toledo Times took a similar view. The Times said.

"That (the appointment) will please the party, no matter whether it does not advantage the senate. Despite Mr. Burke's record as mayor of Cleveland, we cannot see that he possesses the stature of a senatorial statesman, but in the party's view, that is beside the point."

Burke received support in his home town press. The Cleveland Plain Dealer said there is "every reason" to believe he will make a "good United States senator."

In Cincinnati, home of the late Sen. Taft, The Cincinnati Enquirer termed the selection "something of a compromise." It is not in Burke's makeup, the Enquirer said, to "team with the extremists or with Sen. Wayne Morse's splinter party."

One out-of-state newspaer—The New York Herald Tribune—in its praise of the appointment, said:

"Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio seems to have hit upon a man of genuine merit to appoint as the late Sen. Taft's successor.

"It is quite possible that Mr Burke will make a contribution of his own, and his appointment may be the start of a promising and fruitful career in national politics."

Seek To Anticipate Problems

Reorganized PUCO Will Include Research Section

By BILL TERRY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state utilities commission doesn't own a crystal ball, but it would like to look into the future and anticipate problems of utilities it regulates.

Lacking occult powers, the commission is setting up a research department as part of its reorganization program.

"With this department properly functioning," Commissioner Ray O. Martin explained, "we hope to act in the public interest as a doctor practicing preventive medicine instead of a coroner or a doctor conducting an autopsy.

"We spend 95 per cent of our time trying to find a solution for a situation after it has happened. We are like the doctor who is called in just before the patient dies rather than being consulted for periodical checkups."

The commission says business and industry try to avert economic ills instead of waiting for them to appear. And the commission thinks this will be a good practice for it to follow with utilities.

First step in research is sifting and analyzing all the fact and records it can obtain about the utilities and their problems. From this better understanding of utility problems will come policies aimed at insuring good service for the public in the future.

"If the commission 20 or 30 years ago had established a statistical department, many of the ills which we have inherited could have been eliminated," said Robert L. Moulton, commission chairman.

"I don't mean that anyone could have accurately anticipated the tremendous demand on the telephone industry, but some planning could have been done which might have alleviated the situation today."

Commissioner Ralph A. Winter said that during the depression telephone companies lost about half of their subscribers in one year when persons couldn't afford telephones.

"From that time on," he said, "depreciation was allowed and taken in many cases as an expense, but no reserve was built up toward the day that plant would have to be replaced.

"Today many companies are now faced with a 100 per cent replacement project at maximum peak dollar costs, with no depreciation reserve to use. If a commission statistical department had been in existence at that time, a businesslike policy on reserves could have been established and followed. And many companies would be in better shape today.

"We would like to establish sound policies with an eye to preventing bad service conditions happening rather than wait until they are upon us and then try to find a solution."

The commission hopes to accomplish three main objectives in its long-range reorganization program. Much ground has been gained. The objectives:

1. Keeping abreast of all complants and rate cases.

2. Fully educating the commission and staff on all utility problems and regulations.

3. Preventing service ills of the future by research and planning.

"We feel that by accomplishing these three points all of the subscribing public will have good, adequate public utility service at reasonable rates," Moulton said.

"We feel the program will eliminate many of the stumbling blocks that face all of us. We are not naive enough, however, to say that errors and delays will not occur. We are merely trying to eliminate as many as possible."

Burke to the Senate

Now that Gov. Lausche finally has appointed someone to take the late Robert A. Taft's seat in the U. S. Senate, all of us can share the governor's dilemma.

He had to choose between someone who would be a potential successor to Taft in terms of Senate leadership and someone who would satisfy the politics of the situation in Ohio.

Gov. Lausche resolved the dilemma by satisfying the politics of the situation. A Democratic governor who commands enough Republican support to hold an independent position has appointed a Democratic mayor of Cleveland who has used the same formula.

Thomas A. Burke is as far from being a potential successor to the man who was nicknamed "Mr Republican" as anyone who could be found.

But he is as close to Frank J. Lausche's position in state politics as it is possible to be without being Lausche, himself. That is the politics of the situation.

Both are symbols of the influence wielded by the Cuyahoga County vote on Ohio politics. Both are symbols of the Cleveland Democrats who know how to be just independent enough to survive in a state whose partisan politics is six of one and a half dozen of the other.

In actual truth, Gov. Lausche could not have found a successor to Robert A. Taft.

Taft's eminence was his own. It could not be bestowed on anyone else.

When he died, his unique influence died. Thus, it was Gov. Lausche's responsibility to find someone to succeed Taft in Ohio's senatorship, not to find someone who could succeed Taft as the Senate's outstanding individual.

Mayor Burke's appointment is for one year. In the primaries next May and in the election of November 1954 Ohioans will decide who is to fill out the rest of Sen. Taft's term, which runs until 1956.

Whether or not the Cleveland mayor will be a candidate next year is a decision he will make according to the "politics of the situation" as it shapes up in the next few months.

It seems likely at the outset that he, himself, does not know how he is going to like the role in which the politics of Gov. Lausche's situation has cast him.

Two Billion Dollars' Worth

It would be no surprise in a public opinion poll to learn that as many as 9 out of 10 Americans cannot come within a thousand miles of locating Indochina on a map of Asia and have no more knowledge about it than a pig has about Christmas.

But for the 9 out of 10 who haven't kept abreast of the rate and state of turmoil in Indochina it would come as a great surprise to realize they now have sunk two billion dollars' worth of their taxes in a place they know nothing about. This is foreign aid with a vengeance.

The two-billion mark was reached a few days ago when the United States and France announced their latest plan to finish a joint anti-Communist crusade in Indochina, where France has been supporting an expeditionary force since 1945. The plan calls for further U. S. aid up to a total of 385 million dollars. Together with aid previously extended, this will make a total of two billion.

It will not necessarily be a final total either. Having committed itself to bring about the independence of Indochina, whose component parts took advantage of French weakness during World War II to declare their independence of France, the United States cannot back out.

Its commitment in Indochina entered into without any declaration and pursued without any publicity, already is one of the costliest moves ever made in international relations—and all of it without even the knowledge of most of the American people.

Elephant Feelers

Members of the Agriculture Committee on the House of Representatives are traveling through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota to get the feel of rural opinion.

The congressmen probably will do what the blind men did when they felt the elephant — generalize on small impressions. Being politicians, the impression they'll be most likely to form is that farmers want ever-increasing financial assistance from the federal treasury via politics.

But many farmers have been concluding in recent years that federal subsidies merely aggravate and do not solve agriculture's basic problem, which is how to keep farm production from driving down farm income in relation to industrial income.

The latter can be stabilized after a fashion by production control and wage agreements undertaken voluntarily by managers and workers. But farmers can control production only through the intervention of government. They lack the means of getting together and reaching agreements as individuals.

This circumstance explains why the farm vote is easy to exploit.

It explains why politicians are always being tempted to propose solutions for the farm problem which in reality are solutions only for the political problem of how to win farm votes.

Make-Believe World

By David Lawrence

Experience Is Argument Against Big 4 Talks

This is a strange world of make-believe. Day after day from Britain and also from some spokesmen in America come suggestions that America and her allies start "negotiating" with Soviet Russia. Or else Adlai Stevenson and others suggest that a "non-aggression" pact be signed with the Communists. Or else Britons, in urging a high-level conference of the heads of states including Russia, blame America for being cool to the idea.

Then after several days of that type of news the disillusionment comes. Anthony Eden, foreign minister of Great Britain, says:

"To read some comments you would think that a four-power meeting at the highest level was some magic formula which only the Americans prevent us from enjoying."

There is no objection here to talking with the Moscow government. It goes on all the time with diplomatic notes and with diplomatic conversations.

The American government's position is that "high-level conferences" are not likely to be of any avail if there is no commitment in advance either as to subjects to be discussed or what will be done about agreements already made and disregarded.

There is an agreement in existence now to hold a "political conference" on October 28 between the Communist side and the United Nations side with reference to the settlement of the problem of Korea.

To date the Communists have done nothing but talk and argue, and now the proposal has been made that the palaver be resumed at Panmunjom to decide about the composition of the Korean "political conference."

Then there is the talk about a "non-aggression" pact. Secretary Dulles made it clear recently that Soviet Russia wasn't honoring the existing provisions of the U.N. Charter which provide against aggression, thus implying that there wasn't much use talking about another non-aggressive treaty when those in existence were not being honored.

Soviet Russia signed, for instance, a non-aggression pact with the Chinese Nationalist government in 1945 which was to last 30 years. The Communists in Moscow nevertheless have since helped to overthrow the Nationalist government and now exercise considerable control over the Peiping government.

It might be thought, from a reading of some American news dispatches, that the idea of a non-aggression pact would be just the thing to avoid an atomic war and that anyone who criticizes such a pact is against efforts to make peace in the world. Now comes "Pravda," the official newspaper of the Moscow government, to ridicule the proposals from America for a non-aggression treaty.

"American aggressive circles," says "Pravda" in a leading editorial broadcast over the radio, "who are conducting preparations of a war against the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics are fond of screening themselves behind various kinds of 'defensive pacts' on the lines of the Atlantic Pact.

"They make every effort to deceive the American people and the people of other countries by masking their preparations for aggression and by presenting it as a concern for the defense of the United States.

"It is no accident that American propaganda has intensified its efforts to turn black into white, namely, aggressive blocks into 'defensive' ones.

"More than that, in the past few days a number of leading Americans have been making utterances to the effect that the North Atlantic Union might allegedly become 'a guarantee of security' for all European states, including the U.S.S.R."

The "Pravda" editorial then goes on to argue that the United States, while not giving up its aggressive purposes, is cloaking them still under pretense of defense.

Thus, it will be noted that the Soviet propagandists are quite ready to disort all proposals for a non-aggression pact into a charge that the United States will not give up its allegedly "aggressive purposes."

The Soviet editorials take it for granted that nobody is aware of the aggression carried on by the Communists not only in Europe but in the Far East. They make believe that the Americans are the aggressors.

With such a government in Moscow, it is seriously proposed by spokesmen here and abroad that further talk could ldaaco otenfurther talk could lead to a constructive result.

There is not the slightest evidence to back up such a make-believe idea.

Death at Dawn

By TRUMAN TWILL

Freckles, the Dalmatian who had brightened up our premises for the last 16 months, came home from his morning romp yesterday, lay down in his hideaway behind the tool shed and died of internal injuries.

What kind of a vehicle hit him down at the end of the lane never will be known. No one saw it happen. The only proof it happened at all was a black mark across his white chest, a bruise on his ribs, a pavement burn on the inside of a hind leg and broken toenails on his feet.

He was last seen when he was on his way to the hideaway. He was dying then, but that was not to be known until several hours later when his bruised body was discovered.

He was with his companion, the Irish setter, on his last romp. The two of them must have crossed the road in front of a motorist on his way to work. Freckles had no fear of automobiles.

The death of a good dog is poignant. Those who don't understand about dogs and masters must wonder why the masters expose themselves to the additional pain of talking about their grief. Well, there's a pretty good reason.

It's because we want to pay a last tribute to a companion we have loved. Freckles was no better than millions of other dogs that have lived and died in the friendship of human beings who have loved them. But he was just as good, bless him.

His shoe - button nose was always seeking out a friendly hand. He was always trying to get closer to his friends than most of them wanted him to be. When he lay down, it was always across a friendly foot. He loved friendship.

And he loved to be alive. He would play ball by himself for a half hour at a time, tossing the ball into the air and catching it, chasing it across a lawn or down a slope. He could run like a greyhound.

His snow - white coat with its jet - black spots was always immaculate — as clean as the inside of his pink mouth, with its gleaming teeth and black spots. Even his toenails and the pad of his feet were subject to the freak coloration which is the Dalmatian characteristic.

He had one bad habit which he was indulged in because it was harmless. He barked at sheep, always from his side of the fence. The sheep helped him play this game. They pretended to be apprehensive. They weren't.

The last thing I saw him do was to stand off a few feet and bark at an old ewe which stood perfectly still and stared at him from her side of the fence. Both of them were enjoying themselves. Freckles turned around and grinned, to show he was up to no evil.

He was having fun. He had his fair share of fun. No dog ever had more bounce to the ounce that he got out of being alive. He was being gloriously alive, no doubt, when he was struck.

In an age of brutality when all life is cheap, the death of a dog is nothing. Freckles lived long enough to get home where he wanted to be before he died. That's more privilege than tens of thousands of human beings who have lost their lives to the impersonal brutality of this age have had in the last few years.

The Marion Ice & Cold Storage Co. was organized Nov. 21, 1892 under the laws of Ohio with a capital stock of $50,000. The business progressed and as early as 1907 was doing a thriving business. At that time the plant was manufacturing 36 tons of ice per day, employed 20 men and cold storage rooms had a capacity of 35,000 cubic feet. Officers of the company were: F. S. Keuer, president and treasurer, Henry Strelitz, vice president, C. H. Elliott, secretary and Henry W. Keller, superintendent.

U.S. Tax Wrangling Amuses Neighbors

By Edward Nellor

Our Canadian neighbors will be able to view with wry amusement the forthcoming battle in Congress over the levying of a manufacturer's tax in the U.S.A.

Canada has had a manufacturer's tax since 1920. It has expanded from 1 per cent to the present 10 per cent and accounts for 14 per cent of that nation's total tax revenue—slightly more than one-half billion dollars.

No more popular or unpopular than any other kind of tax, Canadians are resigned to living with their manufacturer's tax for many years to come. Government tax experts and politicians in our neighboring country are convinced it is just, easy to collect and a dandy revenue producer.

There are critics, but Canadian officials admit that they are amazed at the amount of objection in the U. S.

President Eisenhower started the manufacturer's tax ball rolling when he refused to deny at a press conference that it is under consideration. He did rule out a general sales tax.

There is a vast difference between a manufacturer's tax and a general sales tax, although critics are already confusing the two.

Using Canada as an example, here is the way the manufacturer's tax works:

Once a month the manufacturers pay the 10 per cent tax on gross sales to the receiver general of Canada. Eight per cent of the tax goes into the general fund and two per cent is earmarked for old age benefit payments to Canadians who are 70 or older.

In addition Canada has an income tax and excise taxes. The former was reduced in 1952.

Excise taxes continue high — averaging 15 per cent—and are imposed on luxuries, just as they are in the U.S. These include furs, jewelry, tobacco, and other items. The tax in Canada on automobiles, for instance, is 25 per cent of the selling price.

The manufacturer's tax and the excise tax in Canada produce a total revenue of $852,000,000 annually.

The manufacturer's tax is passed on to the Canadian consumer. Canadians, including their politicians, do not blink at this fact. The only thing they do is employ a small enforcement and policing force to prevent pyramiding—that is to stop the manufacturer from tacking on his 33-1-3 per cent markup after the manufacturer's tax has been applied.

There is one noticeable difference in excise tax collections in the U. S. and Canada. None of the excise tax revenue in Canada stays in the federal treasury. It all goes to provinces where it is collected. All revenue from the manufacturer's tax, however, is used by the federal government.

There are exemptions of importance in the collection of a manufacturer's tax in Canada. No food producers pay it, nor do farm equipment manufacturers, or those producing machine tools, building materials, fishing boats and logging equipment.

The manufacturer's tax is paid at the point the goods leave the licensed producer. For instance, if you purchase wire for a fence from a tax licensed wire manufacturer, he pays the tax and licensed producer. For instance, if you purchase wire for a fence from a tax licensed wire manufacturer, he pays the tax and passes it along to you in the overall price. If he sells his wire to a manufacturer of fences, however, there is no tax tacked onto the sale. The licensed fence producer, however, does pay a tax when he sells his finished product to a consumer. So the tax, in this instance, is simply delayed, not abandoned.

The Canadians have had more than two decades to get used to the manufacturer's tax. When a postwar surplus developed in the Canadian Treasury, taxpayers demanded a cut in income taxes, and ignored the manufacturers tax altogether.

The biggest complaint that has been voiced in Canada since the inception of the manufacturer's tax is that it burdens the little man and is easier on the wealthy.

Canadian officials deny this, although they admit that at one time such may have been the case. They maintain that the unfairness has been cured by special exemptions on food and tools, for instance. However, they admit that if a manufacturer bases his profits on the cost of manufacturing, plus the tax he pays, then it is unfair to the consumer. Most of the manufacturer's tax enforcement force in Canada concentrates on preventing this.

A general sales tax, which Canada does not have, and which would probably be political suicide in the U.S., if an attempt were made to impose it, is collected at retail outlets. Every store in every hamlet in the country would have to keep a separate set of books and make monthly payments to the national treasury. There would be no hiding the tax, as in the case of the manufacturer's tax, which is added without comment to the total selling price.

Canada ducked the general sales tax for this reason. Collections would be a nightmare on a federal level. Canadian tax experts assumed, and taxpayers would have a constant, irritating reminder of what they are shelling out every time they make a purchase.

For ease of collection, less pain, fewer bureaucrats and less overall irritation, Canada has successfully experimented for more than two decades with a manufacturer's tax.

When the tax was first suggested Canadians, too, objected bitterly. They now anticipate the opportunity of watching somebody else go through the same agony.

Quackery on Exhibit

Those who have practiced quackery in the field of medicine have shown imagination, if nothing else.

On exhibit at the annual assembly of the District Medical Society in Washington is a collection of wily devices and gimmicks which people actually have resorted to in search of a cure for ailments. The exhibit was arranged by the American Medical Association.

One machine, which resembles an old-time radio, was guaranteed to Fertilize farm fields 30 miles away.

Regrow amputated fingers and toes.

Cure all diseases, as well as aid in financial troubles.

The persons who sought these things had only to lick a piece of paper and drop it in a slot on the machine. The operator would turn a couple of dials and a Christmas-tree light bulb would flash on.

Another quack came up with a "hair restorer" which consisted of a metal helmet and, once again, a Christman-tree bulb that lighted up.

The Post Office Department found that hopeful baldheads were paying $13 by mail for the device.

Other gadgets in the exhibit include a magnetized automobile headlight to "draw illness out of the body when turned on." Another is a metal spike which persons were to fasten to their clothes with a safety pin in hopes their cancer would be cured.

A fantastic machine, as complicated as a pilot's dashboard, claimed a cure of just about anything. Actually, it does little more than furnish the shock one can get from a penny arcade machine. Yet, the exhibit points out, about 1,500 such machines were purchased at a cost of $1,200 each.

All the gadgets were obtained by confiscation when their inventors were prosecuted by the government.

A tube, swollen at the bottom, was said to be a magic wand which polarized the oxygen in drinking water. When passed over a glass of water, the water then was supposed to give "remarkable results in arthritis, constipation and diabetes."

And before they got wise, some persons were using something like a horse collar for a number of illnesses. The thick leather belt was worn around the middle and the current turned on. It probably only tickled.

A small, square pad when worn over certain glands of the body was supposed to cure baggy eyes, along with high blood pressure.

An AMA official in charge of the exhibit pointed out some of the devices still are being used—not only by the unintelligent but by intelligent persons as well.

The Once Over

Operation Candor

The air is filled with talk on an "Operation Candor" which will stand your hair on end with respect to atom and hydrogen bombs in the hands of the enemy, the theory being that Joe Doakes, the Man in the Street, isn't sufficiently scared. This department's Frisby Fozzle, eminent expert in all matters deep enough to merit his attention, favors reversing the idea and addressing Washington on behalf of Doakes.

Something along this line.

"Gentlemen of the high places on the Potomac: On behalf of the average man I fear it is you who need to be talked to candidly. Where did you get the idea I am not scared. Who told you I am not worrying enough? Brother, I have been shaking for a long time. If you think I am not showing goose pimples, you are crazy.

-:-

"You are now old enough to be told the truth and given the setup, boys. I am under no illusion that the atom bomb, the hydrogen bomb, the world situation, the Russian attitude and the general picture of a world gone nuts constitute clean entertainment. I can't sleep nights, I am jittery by day. When I want the future read, I pass up fortune tellers and listen to the sounds in a concrete mixer.

"What scares me as much as anything are those contradictory speeches by my leaders, the evidences of snafu in government and this three-dimension picture of high authorities running around in circles.

"I am scared by the addresses at $100-a-plate political dinners, the pop-offs by gassy senators and the views of politicians mainly interested in next year's elections.

"I feel I may be in deadly peril from loose talk, cabinet leaks, fouled-up press releases, frightwig salesmen, conflicting predictions of things to come and TV press panels on which one government leader makes my teeth chatter and is followed by another one who says I worry too much.

"I get a feeling my country could get blitzed through Pentagon confusion, politics, fuddleduddery, slow thinking and the fact so many leaders are talking at once and disagreeing so heartily.

"What scares me is that it is so hard today in an hour of danger to find any leader who looks like George Washington, talks like Abe Lincoln, acts like Paul Revere and could easily be mistaken for Admiral Farragut, John Paul Jones, Ethan Allen, Andy Jackson, Nathan Hale, Davie Crockett or Tony McAuliffe.

"I don't say you ain't trying, boys. But you should get together. Contrary to some hints, I am not a dope, a moron or a short order of cold turkey. I know the terrible danger of the free world, America, my town, my bungalow, my wife, my kids and myself are in.

"Nothing confuses me but my leaders. I wish you would all pause for station identification, compare your speeches and cut out the static interference. Here's hoping!"

News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO — It was Thursday, Oct. 14, 1943.

American and British troops, swarming across the steep-banked Volturno River in a resumption of their drive on Rome, cracked German defenses in a furious night attack and established several strong bridgeheads on the north side of the river.

Five of the 27 men sentenced in 1942 in Federal Court at Columbus on mail fraud charges in connection with sale of Forest Glen, Inc., cemetery lots in Marion, Columbus and Springfield were given clean slates by the Sixth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati. They were L. A. Cratty and C. O. Willey of Marion, Paul Secord of Delaware, William Rucker of Salem and C. F. Stott of Springfield. The men, the court said, were not active in the conspiracy and for the most part were engaged in sale of lots for utility purposes, not for investment.

A former Marion woman, Mrs. Hilda Elizabeth Weiss, was one of 41 Ohioans included among 1,236 American repatriates from the Far East aboard the Japanese exchange liner Teia Maru enroute to Marmugao, Portuguese India. Herd Reducing Plan Advanced By Cattlemen

Propose Government Buy 6 Million Head To Support Market

By OVID MARTIN

WATERTOWN, S D (AP) — A program somewhat akin to the little pig killing program of the 1930s was being advanced by some Great Plains cattlemen today as a means of stabilizing depressed livestock prices

It calls for government buying upwards of six million head of cows for the purpose of reducing cattle breeding herds, and in turn cutting the number of calves that would be born in the immediate years ahead

The government would have the cows processed into canned meat and shipped abroad for the needy.

This plan was laid before a hearing of the House Agriculture Committee here yesterday by the South Dakota Stock Growers Assn., the South Dakota Young Republican Farm Council, and a number of individual farmers. Rep. William S Hill (R-Colo) expresed doubt it would get committee approval.

The committee is touring the Midwest seeking farmer views on legislation for future farm programs to be considered by Congress next year.

The committee headed for Norfolk, Neb., by bus today with brief stops scheduled at Brookings and Sioux Falls, S. D It's next hearing will be held at Des Moines Friday

In the early Roosevelt administration's New Deal days, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace sought to bolster hog prices through government buying of little pigs and sows. The idea was to boost prices by reducing prospective pork prices

Meanwhile, the committee took stock of arm program views laid before it by more than 150 farm leaders and individual farmers at hearings here yesterday and at Minneapolis Monday.

A large majority urged indefinite extension of farm price supports at not less than 90 per cent of parity Secretary of Agriculture Benson has criticized supports at this level because he thinks they create surpluses and bring on controls by pricing products out of markets.

Anti-Benson Candidate Wins

Wisconsin Election Hits At Ike's Farm Program

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower had tangible notice today that his farm policies may not now be satisfactory to a vital segment of voters in the agricultural Midwest.

This notice, which came on the eve of the President's departure tonight for a seven-day political fence-testing tour in farm state areas, was a Democratic victory in a special congressional election in Wisconsin.

Made Chief Issue

Republicans had made support of Eisenhower the chief campaign issue in a district never carried before by the Democrats.

Democrat Lester Johnson swept to a surprising victory with a 9-7 margin over Republican Arthur Padrutt in Wisconsin's 9th District—primarily a farm area. In conceding defeat, Padrutt said he had stood "foursquare behind President Eisenhower, and I still stand there." He added.

"The results show very clearly that the farmer and laboring man do not like the present administration's policies and took this opportunity to show their displeasure"

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn), who campaigned for Johnson, said the result showed "a general dissatisfaction with the farm, power and money policies of the administration."

Will Speak to Farmers

Eisenhower is taking Secretary of Agriculture Benson along with him to meet with farm groups and drought state governors in Kansas City Friday. Some new light on the still-developing administration farm policies may be forthcoming in those conferences

Leading Democrats like Sen Russell of Georgia have contended the farmers are "confused" about the Eisenhower administration's approach to the problem of continuing present crop price supports or offering a substitute program. Russell has predicted this will result in election of a Democratic House next year.

While some Republicans were inclined to regard the Wisconsin result as only a snowflake which might not yet be the forerunner of wintry weather for the administration, other GOP members viewed the outcome as serious.

Not Conclusive

Rep. Richard M Simpson (R-Pa), chairman of the GOP Congresional Campaign Committee whose job it is to try to elect enough Republicans to retain control of the House next year, said the result was not indicative of what will happen then.

Simpson, in Harrisburg, Pa., said, "I can't disagree that the people of this particular district were displeased with the price level minimums." He added

"But they haven't recognized that the present price levels are the result of Democratic party policies, and they have failed to give the President a reasonable time to correct matters which led to the price collapse. I am convinced this will be taken care of in the next session of Congress."

Rep. Clarence Brown (R-Ohio) termed the result "an amazing and unexpected reversal of public political opinion." He said it indicates the GOP has a lot of work to do before the 1954 congressional elections

'Rebuke to Governor'

James Doyle of Madison, state election result constituted a "stinging rebuke" to Eisenhower and Republican Gov. Walter J. Kohler, who campaigned for Padrutt.

Doyle said Kohler "insisted on making Eisenhower an issue and he got an answer loud and clear."

It was the fifth special election since Eisenhower's landslide victory in the presidential race last year, but the first in which there was a reversal of party control.

The lineup in the House of Representatives, counting Johnson's victory, is: 218 Republicans, 214 Democrats, 1 independent and 2 vacancies, both previously held by Republicans

FBI Questions Kidnapers on Ransom Funds

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The FBI today sought to pry new information from the kidnapers of Bobby Greenlese in hopes of uncovering some clue that might lead to $300,000 of ransom money still missing.

Teams of federal agents, working in shifts, questioned 34-year-old Carl Austin Hall and his 41-year-old woman friend, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, in their 11th floor cells in the skyscraper Jackson County Jail.

Approximately half of the record $600,000 ransom paid by multi-millionaire automobile dealer Robert C. Greenlease has been recovered.

Hall, who admitted killing 6-year-old Bobby and burying his body in a lime-filled grave, first body in a lime-filled grave, first said he thought he lost $300,000 while on a drinking spree in St Louis Later he said he believed Mrs. Heady lost the money.

If Mrs Heady has offered any information on the $300,000, officers have not disclosed it

Two matrons at the St Louis city jail, where the couple were held after their arrest, last night described Mrs Heady as "the most hard-boiled woman prisoner" every to occupy a cell there.

Mrs. Grace Gates, a matron for 12 years, said she had "never seen a colder, more scheming woman in my life"

"She seemed absolutely unconcerned," said Mrs Margaret Koenig, supervisor of matrons at the jail

"Right after she was captured and brought here," said Mrs Gates "she was looking at a picture of herself in a newspaper and remarked, 'That's a terrible picture of me'

"I said 'No it looks just as you are, Bonnie'"

On Duty in Europe

McCarthy said one of he two officers who allegedly approved the destruction of notes on the documents is now on duty in Europe. The senator added that Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens "promised to see that he is brought back here," presumably for questioning by the subcommittee.

The senator said destruction of the notes was "completely unprecedented" and would be the "normal thing to do cover up theft of the documents."

Nine witnesses went before the subcommittee yesterday. Four were described as current employes of Ft. Monmouth, where several civilians have been suspended on security grounds.

McCarthy indicated some of the witnesses balked at questions concerning Communist infiltration. He said many of the witnesses knew or had some association with executed atom spy Julius Rosenberg. He added that it might be necessary to question David Greenglass and Harry Gold, confessed co-conspirators of Rosenberg now serving federal prison terms.

Stevens commented that "the Army is investigating all installations and has been aware of the situation at Ft. Monmouth for a considerable period of time"

Wable on Way Back to Trial in Pennsylvania

Accused 'Phantom' Of Turnpike Professes Innocence, Check Alibi

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—John Wesley Wable, accused of being the murderous "phantom of the turnpike," started the long road back to Pennsylvania today.

The 24-year-old former Army man was to leave for Pennsylvania under the custody of Westmoreland County detective Merle Musick and Pennsylvania state police Cpl. William Smith.

The Westmoreland County assistant district attorney, Joseph M. Loughgran, who left today by plane for Greensburg, Pa., to make arrangements for Wable's arrival, said

"I think we've got a good, tight case against him. There is no other man implicated in the turnpike murders as he indicated"

Wable is charged with the deaths last July of truckers Harry F. Pitts 39, Bowling Green, W. Va., and Lester B Woodward, 39, Harrisburg, Pa Both were shot in the head and robbed while sleeping in their trucks.

The thin prisoner in a statement yesterday protested his innocence of charges that he murdered the two men and wounded another trucker.

He said in a written statement that he was a "pusher" of counterfeit money and that the man who supplied the bogus bills borrowed his foreign-made .32 pistol which was used in the killings.

Wable waived extradition. He said he wanted to "clear his name" of blame in the July killings on the turnpike which terrorized truckers. Burly and tough truck drivers took to driving in convoys for protection against the unknown killer who was dubbed "The Phantom."

Wable underwent thorough questioning by the Pennsylvania officials. He refused to change his statement including his alibi that he was working in Cleveland at the time the murders took place Loughgran would not comment on Wable's alibi but said:

"We've got five men in Cleveland checking that out. We'll just have to wait until we hear from them."

Wable was arrested in Belen, N. M., after a 20-mile, 96-mile-an-hour chase in a stolen Pennsylvania car following a holdup of an Albuquerque gas station in which he and two companions allegedly took part.

Officials End Quarantine on Dogs Thursday

Calling all dogs. Beginning tomorrow you may cast off your chains and roam at will in Marion—providing your master has provided you with the necessary license.

The Marion City Board of Health today announced lifting of the dog quarantine which has been in effect in the city since May 11.

In announcing the lifting of the quarantine, Dr. M M. Weinbaum, health commissioner, said it is felt danger of rabies infection has now decreased to a minimum.

The quarantine was placed in effect by the Board of Health in May to discourage the spread of rabies. It required that all dogs either be chained or penned at at all times.

2 PTA Groups Endorse State School Board

The Glenwood and Silver Street school PTA's, in separate meetings at the schools Tuesday night, adopted resolutions endorsing an amendment creating a state board of education for Ohio. Called amendment 2, it will appear on the ballot at the November election.

Explaining the proposed amendment to the Silver Street PTA, James Hill, school principal, told the group it would improve schools by providing top planning at the state level He went on to say that the present relationship between the state and local boards would remain, but within the state department of education the chief responsibility would rest with a board of citizens

Miss Clara Alice Wilson, Pearl Street principal and former principal at Glenwood School, told the Glenwood PTA it would be the responsibility of elected representatives in the General Assembly to find out which type of board would be the most suitable for Ohio and then pass appropriate laws establishing it.

She said adoption of the proposed amendment would not raise taxes. She added the amendment specifies that Ohio shall have a state board to give general oversight and direction to school affairs and, specifies that the board shall select the state superintendent of public instruction.

Rhodes, Rutkowski Out To Eliminate 'Pint Bootlegger'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The state auditor and the liquor department are initiating a campaign to eliminate the "pint bootlegger" in Ohio

State Auditor James A. Rhodes says his examiners have turned up many cases of persons giving names that sound fictitious on liquor purchase slips. He said these persons were presumably buying liquor for illegal resale.

Rhodes charged failure of state liquor stores to require correct names and addresses on purchase slips was contributing to "organized weekend crime" He said inadequate high-level supervision was responsible

"No one knows where this liquor goes," Rhodes told two investigators assigned by the liquor department to aid in the inquiry into illegal resales. "But," he added, "there is considerable drinking among youths"

His examiners reported bootlegger markups of 50 cents a bottle on weekdays and $2 a bottle on Sundays, Rhodes said.

Officer Facing Ouster, Family Loyalty Issue

Classified as Security Risk Because Sister, Father Are Questioned

MT. CLEMENS, Mich. (AP)—An Air Force Reserve officer whose personal loyalty is unquestioned faces ouster today as a "doubtful security risk"

He is Lt. Milo J. Radulovich, 26-year-old father of two and a meteorology student at the University of Michigan.

A 10th Air Force board of three colonels recommended yesterday that "he be discharged from the Air Force Reserve and that all commissions held by him be terminated." In announcing the decision, however, 10th AF headquarters made a point of repeating that "his loyalty was not questioned"

Activities of his father and a sister were questioned The father, John Radulovich, 65, a Hudson Motor employe, was accused of having been a subscriber of a "radical" newspaper, and the sister, Mrs Margaret Fishman of Detroit, with having engaged in "picket line activity."

The Air Force claimed young Radulovich had maintained a "close and continuing" association with his father and sister. Two fellow workers of the father testified they knew him as a loyal American. So did the son.

"The decision came because I told the board I didn't think it was in my province to tell my sister what her politics should be." Radulovich told reporters at Ann Arbor. "This is the same kind of decision you would have expected from the Nazi army."

He was uncertain whether he would continue his studies, because "you can't get anywhere with a label like that and I've got the wife and kids to support."

Charles C. Lockwood, attorney for Radulovich, declared an appeal would be taken to the Air Force personnel board and Secretary of the Air Force Talbott, if intermediate commanders did not set the decision aside.

With Eisenhower at the reins, the couple rode around the arena while the crowd chanted "Happy birthday" Ushered up a red velvet rug to the stage, the Eisenhowers stood spotlighted as the lights went out and over 6,000 candles flamed in the hands of spectators.

Officially, the State Department had no comment.

There appeared to be a conviction that the decision to get out of Trieste eventually would stand or fall on how it works out, and that anything said now might prevent its working well.

Other topics expected to get consideration at the London meeting of Dulles and the British and French foreign ministers were a possible new note to Russia about Big Four talks on Germany and the controversy with Red China over a Korean peace conference.

Engineers Visit Sewage Plant, Vote To Back Maintenance Levy

Marion's professional engineers have decided to support the proposed levy to raise funds for the maintenance and operation of the new sewage disposal plant.

The Marion Chapter of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers unanimously passed a motion to back the levy in November's election after touring the new sewage plant Monday.

Approximately 50 members and guests of the Society, inspected the new $800,000 improvement of the Marion disposal plant. The engineers were guided by sanitation engineers from the Floyd G. Browne Associates who designed the disposal plant.

Dave Seidel of the Floyd G. Browne Associates was in charge of the program, assisted by Tom Dunn, Mike Cochran, Jack Koeppen and Grant Hinkamp.

Seidel and his assistants explained that the first sewage treatment plant in Marion was placed in operation on practically the same site in 1924 At that time it was the latest type of trickling filter sewage treatment and cost $539,200 00

Due to increasing demands for higher degrees of treatment which have been developed in the past 25 years and because of decreasing efficiency and deterioration of the various units and growth of the city, it became necessary to modernized and enlarge the existing sewage treatment plant

The modernized plant was constructed at a cost of almost $800,000 and was placed in continuous operation about Aug. 15, 1953. The sewage treatment facilities are designed to treat the sewage from a domestic and industrial load equivalent to a population of 51,000 and to handle a maximum flow of 10 million gallons of waste water per day

This high capacity is handled by two pumps driven by electric motors and one driven by a gas engine arranged to operate on sewage gas. These pump the settled sewage to the trickling filters through a flow meter.

Trickling filters consist of six crushed stone beds, 101 feet in diameter and 10 feet deep. The rotary distributors distribute the sewage uniformly over the stone. Micro and macroscopic organisms grow on the stone and feed on the dissolved fine and suspended organic matter in the sewage.

The final settling tank removes the organisms which are continuously washed out of the filters. The clear water going over the weirs at the end of the tank flows to the Little Scioto River.

Sludge removed from the primary tanks is pumped to the two digesters. These tanks are 60 feet square and 30 feet deep and are heated to a temperature of 95 degrees F. Heating is accomplished by circulating the tank contents through the two 375,000 BTU per hour heat exchangers. The boilers are arranged to burn either fuel oil or sewage gas. Exhaust heat from the gas engine in the pump building will be used for heat.

Sewage gas is formed in the digesters and collected under the floating covers. Approximately one cubic foot per capita is collected daily

After about 90 days in the digesters the sludge becomes relatively inert and is pumped to the filter building for vacuum filtration on the drum filter. It is inoffensive and can be piled. The sludge while rather low in nitrogen is better than compost for use on lawns and flower beds.

Emmett Burnett is the manager in charge of the entire sewage treatment plant.

After the tour a box lunch was served in one of the new buildings that is not yet in operation.

The Society also gave unamimous approval to Russell Butterworth to solicit engineers for funds for the traffic survey being promoted by the Chamber of Commerce. Butterworth, a member of the society, is chairman of the committee to raise funds from professional groups for the survey

Steve Kuehner was nominated for state vice president in the state organization's annual election of officers in Columbus.

George M. Gieger, engineer for Hydraulic Press Machinery Co. of Mt. Gilead, was accepted as a new member of the Marion chapter.

Children in Waldo Will Hold Fund Aid Drive on Halloween

WALDO—Children in Waldo will make an appeal for funds for the children of the rest of the world this Holloween as they plan to conduct a special campaign that night.

The funds raised by the children will be used in the work of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. The idea of this plan was conceived two years ago by several churches.

On Halloween, children will make their usual rounds of houses in Waldo in costume, asking for the "trick or treat" so common in America on Halloween.

After they make their rounds, the youngsters will return to the Waldo Methodist Church Basement where games will be held.

The fund provides vaccines, penicillin, and DDT to help control diphtheria, malaria, tuberculosis and other diseases which kill and sicken children each year.

It also sets up clinics for mothers and children, and provides milk and fish oil capsules for the children.

One dollar collected by the children this Halloween will be enough to provide 9 children a glass of milk every day for a week, enough fish-liver oil capsules to forufy 13 children against rickets, enough vaccine for 24 youngsters, or enough DDT to prevent malaria from striking 13 persons for one year.

Thursday evening, at the Waldo School Auditorium, the PTA will show a 10-minute film entitled "The Children."

This film shows the work of the UNICEF. Its showing was arranged by the "Tricks or Treat" committee of the church.

These Days

By George Sokolsky

Since Malenkov has become the master of Russia, he has been pressing for a Big Four Conference. The idea is that Malenkov, Eisenhower, Churchill and Laniel will sit down to a talk to review all the problems that face their countries and the world and that something will come of it.

SOKOLSKY

It will be recalled that the first proposal for such a conference came from Sir Winston Churchill and the place set was Bermuda. Churchill became ill, France's government fell, and the Bermuda conference did not take place.

The American government was never anxious that it should take place and proposed instead that the foreign ministers of the four contries talk things over. This has not happened.

THREE REASONS move our government to go slowly into this type of negotiations.

1—We have nothing to gain because the Russians have no concessions to make, no matter how the situation is analyzed. On the other hand, the United States has several concessions to make which can only benefit and strengthen Soviet Russia. Therefore, such a negotiation can give the impression of American appeasement of Soviet Russia;

2—Teheran, Yalta and Potsdam have become landmarks in American diplomacy and continue to plague the Eisenhower administration as they did the Truman administration.

So much that was wrong was done at these conferences that practically everybody associated with them has suffered politically because of them.

The American theory therefore is that conferences on the level of heads of states are disadvantageous. It is preferable to negotiate through foreign ministers or in the United Nations;

3—The issues before the world are well known, have been fully canvassed, and the attitude of each country is clear. The principal objective must be peace.

To be sure of peace, the use of non-conventional weapons, the hydrogen and atom bombs, chemical warfare, biologic warfare and guided missiles must be abandoned. Otherwise, the armament race will continue and must result in war.

This issue, the Russians are apparently not prepared to resolve in a manner that can strengthen confidence.

A non-aggression pact is inadequate: between 1925 and the present, Soviet Russia has made many non-aggression pacts which were broken at will. Therefore, the negotiation would be futile unless some guarantees were provided which could prove binding.

-:-

ON THE OTHER hand, the United States is embarrassed by pressure for such a meeting on the part of Great Britain, France and the neutral nations led by India.

The embarrassment mounts as the leadership of the Democratic party, Harry Truman and Adlai Stevenson, presses for such negotiations.

It would become an issue in the 1954 congressional campaign and the question could well be asked: "What will it hurt to meet Malenkov? If the meeting is a failure, it was a good try; if peace comes from it, it would be a godsend."

It is a difficult decision to make. If Dulles, Eden, Bidault, and Molotov could meet in advance, canvass the discussion, gain some preliminary insight into the prospects for peace, it would be an advantage.

APART FROM the diplomacy involved, these men know each other, have conferred before, and have established some knowldge of each other's methods.

Neither Churchill, Eisenhower nor Laniel has met Malenkov, certainly not since he has acceded to power. Malenkov has already demonstrated, at least by the purge of Beria, that he is strong in his position.

Churchill is ill, cannot remain long in power, and obviously seeks to end his career by a dramatic diplomatic achievement.

Laniel is new in dipomacy, has had no experience in dealing with such issues, and can never know when a slight shift in French politics will overturn his government.

This uncertainty affects many international questions.

-:-

EISENHOWER remains at the height of his popularity, but the attitudes of Truman and Stevenson have made it clear that the political honeymoon period is over.

For Eisenhower, it would be politically preferable to wait until after the 1954 congressional elections to see precisely where he stands and how much support he actually has before he makes a new departure in policy. Furthermore, he needs to be sure of his support in Congress.

The probability is, however, that the pressure for a conference is becoming too strong to resist.

To hold it or not to hold it is a difficult decision to make because of the political risks, internal and external.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Harry Bridges, listed in many government files as an agent of the Communist International network, has just told his followers that the national crime syndicate's longshoremen's outfit "is absolutely right" in fighting the AFL and the governments anti-crime commissions.

RIESEL

This moral backing from the man who for a while was the head of Russia's world maritime federation, organized to paralyze western shipping when Moscow gave the word, is part of a new East-West Coast Communist propaganda push in behalf of the terrorist locals ousted from the AFL recently.

The pro-Communists and the crooks have a common fear of the new federal approved law requiring longshoremen to be fingerprinted, photographed and registered before they can work on New York harbor's strategic piers. Not only goons, but underground agents as well, will be unearthed and driven from the docks.

ALONG WITH their moral support, the leftists have their money-laden agents concentrated in New York and New Jersey waterfront areas, trying to make deals with those locals so long in terrorist hands that they have been nicknamed the "bomb" and "pistol" locals.

A group of Bridges friends, in from the West Coast, lunched quietly at Rosoff's Restaurant, 147 West 43rd St., in New York last Friday.

Of all the pro-Sovieteers now nosing around the explosive waterfront, Harry Bridges has been the most out-spoken, for he is, after all, the labor boss of the powerful Communist-line unions in the country.

-:-

AS RECENTLY as Oct. 2, Bridges told all his followers, through his West Coast Longshoremen's Union newspaper, The Dispatcher, that:

"No member of the ILWU (International Longshoremen and Warehouse Union, independent) can take comfort from what's happening to the ILA longshoremen."

Then, after blasting the AFL Seafarers' Union chief, Paul Hall, who is leading the battle against the waterfront mobs, and Dave Beck, who is lending the powerful Teamsters Union's support, Harry Bridges derides their move against the mobs.

"We in the ILWU have already had some experience with Lundeberg, Beck and the SIU and their cabby goon squad tactics on the West Coast," Bridges sneeringly asserts.

"Against the Marine Cook and Stewards and the ILWU this same gang of labor fakers have excused the use of gangsters and goon squads by claiming that they were 'fighting Communism'. Now they're using the same tactics against the ILA, claiming they're fighting gangsterism."

-:-

WHILE THROWING phrases like "phony clean-up campaign" at the new drive and charging that it is "nothing but a cover-up for a politician-labor racketeer maneuver," Bridges says that the "east Coast docker (the old ILA—VR) deserve the support of all labor."

This, of course, is the signal to the other pro-Commie unions, which have 500,000 members, and millions in their kitties, to back the thug-run locals on the Eastern docks.

What's significant here is that this is a sudden switch by the pro-Soviet labor network. Last winter Harry Bridges flew East, secretly contacted the New York State Crime Commission and asked to be put on the stand so he could testify against the mobs. Now he reverses himself. Why?

-:-

WHY ARE his friends, the ones who publish the commie-line "Dockers News" on the waterfront, now agitating in this publication that the shippers sign with the old ILA—in defiance of the request by the AFL and Gov. Dewey that the owners refrain from such action, which would consolidate the muscle-locals on the piers?

Both the Dockers News and Harry Bridges have been backing up the old ILA's strike and urging that it continue to paralyze shipping.

The crooks and the pro-commies fear that their network will be smashed, and once more the terrorists on both sides, as has happened in so many lands, find themselves in a common front against decency.

State Short on Aid To Schools, Reports Director Hissong

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There isn't enough money for all needy local school districts who might apply for state aid in emergency building, says the state education director.

Dr. Clyde Hissong said yesterday the three million dollars appropriated by the 100th General Assembly won't go far among Ohio's space-cramped schools.

Districts should not apply, he said, unless students are now being taught in buildings termed unsafe, unhealthy or otherwise unfit. Districts must have exhausted or be willing to exhaust all local sources for raising building funds, he added.

Hissong explained that only districts in which the assessed real estate valuation is less than $6,000 per pupil in average daily membership are eligible to apply.

Bucyrus Contract Given To Builder at Mansfield

BUCYRUS — Safety-Service Director A. L. Winter announced here today that the contract to furnish and drive pilings for the foundation of the new municipal garage has been awarded to Roger J. Au, a Mansfield contractor.

Au's bid was the lower of two submitted. Au bid $2,277 while the bid of the Crawford Construction Co., Galion, was for $3,150.

The garage, a one-story structure, will be built directly east of the present city garage. It will be used to house numerous pieces of city equipment, which are now unsheltered, city officials said.

U.S. production of coke last year was four times that of England and twice as much as the estimated Soviet production.

They figured now that the coon's noctural forays for food were ended, the prowler complaints would cease.

Marion Man's Dog Scores Victories in New York Shows

A French bulldog owned by Charles F. Parshall of 694 Girard Ave. is only four points away from a coveted American Kennel Club championship following victories in two shows in the East this week.

The dog, D'Parshall Suzette, added one point to her total Monday in a show in The Bronx, N. Y., winning the best of opposite sex in the French Bulldog class. The day before, in a bulldog specialty show at Westchester, N. Y., she won five points by earning the best of opposite sex title, together with her class championship and best of winners prize

The two victories brought her point total to 11. Fifteen are required, including two major show victories, for the championship designation. The dog one and one-half years old, earned two points at a Detroit show Oct 4 and the International Show in Chicago earlier this year.

Parshall bought the dog as a pet for his children when she was just a puppy He had no intention of showing her but was persuaded to do so by other dog lovers in Marion

The dog was shown in New York by Tom Crowe of Warren, O., a professional handler In other shows the handler has been Earl Schaefer of Marion

Larger Role Being Taken By Automatic Machines

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — A machine comes into a factory or office and in a matter of minutes turns out a completed job that once took many workers hours to do. But what about the men and women? Will they get other jobs?

More and more such automatic machines will be changing the look of factories and also changing the kind—and number—of employes.

One example: A huge broaching machine operated by one man can pick up an auto engine block in a Ford plant in Cleveland, and using 1,344 tools do a dozen machining operations. It can turn out 15 engine blocks an hour. Plant employes are mostly technicians, jobsetters, maintenance men.

Another example: Operating control boards, 12 men can run an oil refinery. Without help of instruments, it would take 800 men to do the work. That would make more jobs — and the price of gasoline would be higher.

A third example: Remington Rand has installed in the Chicago merchandising office of John Plain & Co. a machine called "distribution" which has the working capacity of 30,000 adding machines. It keeps inventory data current. In minutes it can get inventory data in shape for buyers, where formerly it took scores of clerks a week or more to do it.

For management the competitive advantages of automatic controls are real: Speedy production, lower labor costs, a minimum of human error, a jump on rivals in getting trade data.

But a lot of men and women in the factories and offices may protest, especially if a business dip makes jobs scarce.

Employe acceptance of an office machine or system is even more important than the machine or system itself, Miss Marion A. Bils of the Aetna Life Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn., tells the American Management Assn's. office management conference being held here.

Management's answer is usually to point out that in the past machines have eventually led to higher living standards, less drudgery, more jobs.

As machines substitute for men, "engineering may eventually be the largest profession, with scientists in research not far behind," predicts John Post, manager of the industrial relations department of Continental Oil Co. He sees an increasing "trend from a wage-earning to a salaried population" with incomes tending to stabilize.

Automatic machines, management contends, will come to do the heavy work and save men for better jobs commanding higher pay.

Bobo's Divorce Settlement Set At $5½ Million

CHICAGO (AP)—A divorce settlement, with more than 5½ million dollars involved, reportedly has been agreed upon between Barbara (Bobo) Rockefeller and her estranged husband, Winthrop Rockefeller.

A Chicago attorney in close touch with the case last night reported the settlement, which is said to be the largest on record. There was no comment from Rockefeller or Mrs. Rockefeller.

The Chicago attorney, who asked that his name not be used, said Barbara, 36-year-old daughter of a Pennsylvania coal miner, is to received two million dollars in cash or securities plus a one million dollar trust fund guaranteeing her an income of $20,000 a year for life.

The attorney said she also is to receive $70,000 a year in alimony from Rockefeller, payable until her remarriage or until Rockefeller's death.

In addition, two trust funds totaling 2½ million dollars are to be set up for their son, Winthrop Paul, 5. The son is to remain in the mother's custody but the father will have visiting rights. Rockefeller also has agreed to pay all attorneys fees and costs in connection with the divorce.

Actor Larry Parks Will Resume Career in Films

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Larry Parks is coming back to Columbia Studios to make a picture for the first time since his testimony before the House Un-American Activities Committee that he had once been a Communist brought his movie career to an abrupt halt. Little Chance Seen for Hall To Beat Chair

Greenlease Kidnaper Could Be Sentenced Despite Legal Dodge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indications from Kansas City that Carl Austin Hall may plead guilty in the kidnap-killing of Bobby Greenlease raise the question whether he could thereby escape a death sentence.

But legal authorities say there is a way such a sentence could be imposed, regardless of the plea.

In the federal courts, which will handle the Lindbergh kidnap law charges against Hall and his woman friend, Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, the presiding judge has absolute discretion whether or not to accept such a plea.

If Hall should plead guilty with the thought of throwing himself solely upon the mercy of the judge, and the court agreed to this arrangement, the most severe penalty he could get would be life imprisonment.

This is true because the Lindbergh law provides the death penalty only when (1) the victim is harmed and (2) a death sentence is recommended by a jury.

This led legal experts to speculate today that if a guilty plea is entered, and accepted by the court the judge may proceed to empanel a jury for the specific purpose of getting its recommendation on a sentence after it has heard the full story of the abduction and killing of 6-year-old Bobby.

If this jury recommended a death sentence, the judge under the law could impose it, the experts said.

They pointed out, moreover, that regardless of the outcome of prosecution under the Lindbergh law, which is a federal anti-kidnaping statute, state authorities if they saw fit could bring Hall to trial on a murder charge. Such a charge presumably would ave to be filed in Kansas, since the FBI says the actual killing took place in that state.

SETTLE FOR $80,000

CLEVELAND (AP)—Prudential Insurance Co. settling a damage suit out of court, awarded $80,000 yesterday to Sandra Wesley, an 11-year-old Wellington girl who was struck by a car driven by a debt collector for the firm. Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wesley said the youngster suffered a brain injury and will be an invalid for the rest of her life because of the accident on Nov. 11, 1948. Driver of the car was Clinton T. Stranahan of Elyria.

Tips on Overcoming an American Monopoly

Want To Stop Worrying Habit? Quit Practicing

WASHINGTON, (NANA) — The art of worrying is one of the things about which we Americans can claim a high degree of know-how. We turn out some of the best worriers in the world, and apparently more of them It's not a new accomplishment. Back in 1881, a man named G. M Beard described psychoneurosis (another word for high-class worrying) as "American nervousness."

So don't blame the atomic age or modern living for the fact that an estimated seven out of ten persons who visit doctors are suffering from frazzled nerves as the result of worry, changing times, the Kiplinger Magazine advises A good fret-and-fume man has to work at it.

In the first place, to be a really good worrier a person has to be pretty darned intelligent. No one with a subnormal IQ ever mastered the art.

It will help, too, if his mother or father was the "nervous type," no that people actually inherit a tendency to worry, but children are apt to pick up their parents' ways of approaching a problem.

—:—

FROM THERE, the job of becoming a topnotch worrier is a matter of growth and self-education To start, it takes experience —in other words, a person must have lived long enough to have acquired painful thoughts and fears. Next, it takes practice. All learning requires practice, and worrying is a learned art. There are two ways to practice.

First, it is necessary to keep thinking about things to worry about just as much as one can. A couple of hours' worrying a day will never make anyone an expert. Eight or ten hours is more like it.

If personal worries won't sustain the worrier that long, he must look around. Once a person gets the hang of it, it's easy to find new worries. A boy at play may strike a normal individual as a pleasant sight, but an expert worrier will remind himself that some day this happy, carefree child probably will be in the army, carrying a gun.

An accomplished worrier can make unpleasant thoughts out of almost anything that comes to mind.

—:—

THE SECOND WAY to practice is to talk up worries. Private worries, of course, are favorite conversational subjects, to be aired at every opportunity, and if these get used up, the next thing to do is to start on other people's troubles. No tale of woe should be beneath the worrier's notice.

The real worrier never passes up a chance to recount a sad story. He fills his talk with misfortune, gloom and dire predictions

The only trouble is that everything that is learned is subject to being forgotten, a passive process that keeps going on. So the art of worrying can be lost if not constantly employed.

When a person gets to be a really accomplished worrier, he will discover that some most unpleasant and disturbing things happen to him. Not only does he become chronically depressed, timid, fearful and oversensitive; he has physical troubles, too.

Why? well, the psychologists and physiologists got together and decided that thoughts and emotions extend in their effects beyond the brain into muscles, glands and organs. A person trembles with fear, grows limp with shock, becomes red-faced with rage—there are dozens of physical manifestations everyone is familiar with.

—:—

WHAT CAUSES THEM is this: when someone is in the act of thinking or talking about some unpleasant or fearful thought, all the vital processes speed up. Respiration, pulse rate and blood pressure rise; more blood flows into the muscles and less into the stomach and other organs; blood sugar and adrenal gland secretion become high.

Those reactions can be useful in case of danger. They result in quick energy to fight off attack—or to run from it.

But what happens to the stomach isn't useful. In fright, shock or anger, the small end, or duodenum, contracts as peristaltic waves become more frequent the larger end gets loose and flaccid. If the emotion is severe enough, the small end becomes so tense that digestive juices cannot pass through and digestion stops. The rest of the body's insides also get all stewed up—all the organs in the head, throat, abdomen and pelvis. (viscera, the scientists call them.) The viscera step up their activities, and that increased activity stimulates the visceral sensory organs, which in turn send impulses back to the brain. There is a feeling of discomfort, which gives rise to more unpleasant thoughts, which work on the viscera again. And so on and on in a never-ending circle.

OF COURSE, to get the viscera into real high gear a person has to have the imagination to make painful thoughts quite vivid and be practiced enough at worrying to elicit an emotional reaction

The good worrier constantly overworks his organs and keeps them in a state of incessant activity. That is where the physical reaction comes in.

Are you a worrier? If you are, why don't you try this cure? Dr. Matthew N. Chappell wrote about it in a book called "In the Name of Common Sense." (MacMillan). Here, in brief, is what he says.

Basically, your problem is to interfere with that vicious cycle between brain and viscera. Working on the viscera (with alcohol or relaxing pills) seldom helps for long. So you want to work on the brain. Generally, what you can do is let up on your worrying so that the forgetting process can get to work At the same time, learn other behavior as a substitute for worrying.

Get an objective Probably any change will be for the better, but it helps to figure out what kind of person you want to be. Serene or gay, completely unemotional or just in control of your thoughts, helpful to others or just mildly pleasant, unafraid or able to face fears.

CHANGE YOUR conversation Tell your troubles once—to your physician. Then keep them to yourself. Describing your plight to friends and relatives gives you a lift, but it also gives you practice in arousing unhappy emotions. Quit taking the greeting, "How are you?" literally. Ban talk of fears, anxieties, enemies, hatreds, sorrows, disappointments, debts, etc.

Change your thoughts. Here's the hard part. You can't always change thoughts by will power, and a sea voyage isn't a lasting remedy. So what you do is learn to substitute pleasant thoughts for unpleasant ones.

Dr. Cappell says this is the method: pick an incident from the happiest period of your life (most people find it in childhood) and have it ready to think about when a worry thought comes along. If you don't pick a subject in advance, you won't be able to think of a single thing that's pleasant.

Then start remembering. You probably won't be able to dredge up much to remember about the incident unless you apply the old newspaper questions—who?-when?-where? - what? - how? - why? If you use those as prods, you can string your story into a good, long one. Incidentally, forming mental images into words makes for better practice.

AT FIRST, you will be lucky if you can keep your attention on the time you went to the circus with grandpa for more than one-tenth of the time. The other nine-tenths will be spent back in the old worry mill

But keep practicing. Pull your thoughts away from unpleasant things—not by force, but by substitution—whenever they come up. Maybe 50 or 100 times a day.

Nobody, least of all Dr. Chappell, says that this is easy, but it can be done in time. When you have enough practice, you may find that you have forgotten your old worry habits and have learned how to think and talk about happy things. And bodily symptoms disappear, too

Other students of the worrier and his problems have come up with other methods, though the pattern described by Dr. Chappell is basic in most of them Here are some extra hints gleaned from them.

By all means, see your doctor.

Ask for the aid of your family.

Face real worries with intelligence, and remove them as rapidly as possible.

Tackle jobs immediately and get them done.

Avoid senseless worries and unimportant emotions.

Try diversionary activity.

Finally, use your spiritual faith to its utmost. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, eminent churchman, puts it this way: "thoughts of faith will crowd out worry. Fear is the most powerful of all thoughts with one exception, and that one exception is faith Faith can always overcome fear."

Cleveland Mayor Since '45

Ohio's New Senator Has Notable Record in Public

CLEVELAND (AP)—A round-faced Irishman with a disconcerting wit, a quiet manner and an outstanding record in public office is Ohio's new senator.

Mayor Thomas A. Burke, named to fill the vacant Senate seat of the late Robert A. Taft, is regarded even by his political enemies as an exceptional person.

Some reporters who have followed the 54-year-old Democrat during his four terms in office call him "not only a great mayor, but a great man."

Plump, grey-haired and with twinkling eyes, Burke has been mayor of Cleveland since 1945—longer than any other person. Tom L. Johnson served four terms back in the 1930's, but Burke got the jump by serving part of another term.

That was in 1945 when Frank J. Lausche was elected governor and appointed Burke, then city law director, to fill the mayoral vacancy.

Out of four mayoral election contests in which Burke ran, he was a landslide winner in all but one. And that one—in 1951—wasn't very close, for his margin was about 10 per cent.

Son of a Cleveland doctor, Burke began his public service career in 1930 as an assistant county prosecutor. That was 10 years after his cum laude graduation from Holy Cross College and seven years after he took a law degree from Western Reserve University here.

He is regarded as an excellent administrator, a man who does his work smoothly, without jolting changes. No whisper of scandal has touched his public or private life.

The conservative rather than colorful, Burke appeals to voters' intelligence rather than their emotions. Usually, he listens calmly to criticism and cites the record in rebuttal. He lets the public do the deciding.

Although his party urged him to run again, Burke last May announced he would not again seek the post that pays $15,000 annually. He said he had been making too great a financial sacrifice for too many years.

(Only last week council began a move to boost the pay of Cleveland's mayor to $25,000).

Shortly before President Truman left office, he offered to appoint Burke ambassador to Ireland, but the mayor refused, believing incoming President Eisenhower would supplant him with a Republican.

In nearly nine years as mayor, Burke held down the city's tax rate, yet managed to advance the greatest capital improvement program in Cleveland's history.

He settled a century-old problem with the railroads over title to filled-in lands along the lakefront and built the lakefront airport on a former rubbish heap. Under his administration was started a huge municipal lot that provides free parking except for special events, such as ball games in the nearby stadium.

In 1946, a strike of several hundred municipal employes hit City Hall. In seven hours it was over, the picket lines dissolved, the workers told to go back to work the next morning.

"What happened?" the reporters wanted to know. "What did you give them"

"I didn't give them anything except some good old Anglo-Saxon praseology . . ," said the mayor. "I told them I did not care what they did but I was going to keep the City Hall open. I told them I would not even consider their requests until the employes had returned to work."

Later, he told a reporter: "Boy! Was I scared! But I made up my mind that was the one time I had to throw my weight around."

Week of Rain Is Needed in Ohio

Little Relief Reported In Sight for October

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's soil grows drier by the day and little relief appears in sight.

That's the opinion of state department of natural resources experts who are studying Ohio's water shortage problem and are hoping for a good, week-long rain.

C. V. Youngquist, state division of water chief, said the long range weather forecast predicts less than normal rain for October and higher than normal temperatures.

Right now, he added, the soil throughout most of the state is so dry it will not support plants with roots that don't penetrate deeply.

He said it would take four inches of rain penetration to restore the soil moisture to normal.

James D. Wells, assistant director of natural resources, said Ohio so far this year has had five or six inches less rain than on the average. The average yearly precipitation is 38 inches.

Practically all the streams in southern Ohio, particularly hard hit by the drought, have edp ,udr hit by the drought, have dried up, he said, and stream flow of larger bodies of water has decreased greatly.

Story of an Average Housewife

Trellis Mae Flunks Wilbur's IQ Test

By HAL BOYLE

HOMETOWN, U. S. A. (AP)—Every married woman today is interested in who is divorcing whom and why—particularly why.

Trellis Mae Peeble, America's average housewife, had no intention of ever divorcing her husband, Wilbur, but she did like to let him know she had plenty of reasons if she wanted to

By avidly reading the newspaper she had assembled a box score of 67 different situations in which a wife had won a divorce from her husband for doing something Wilbur, too, had been guilty of, at one time or another

Wilbur thought this was gruesome of her, and would have preferred she follow some more pleasant hobby, such as studying poisons or collecting used murder weapons

Oh, goody goody now I'm up to 68," chortled Trellis Mae, ripping an item out of the paper "It says here a gal in Detroit got a divorce because her husband made her take intelligence tests and called her stupid if she didn't make a grade of 98 You called me stupid once"

"Look," said Wilbur, "You admit I was talking in my sleep, when I said it, don't you? You can't blame me for what I say when I'm unconscious, can you?"

"That's the only time you do anything except grunt"

'Well anyway I never made you take any intelligence tests" remarked Wilbur, then a gleam came into his eyes as he added craftily

"Not that you'd have any trouble batting 100 per cent in any old test I could dream up, honey"

'Do you really think so?'" asked Trellis Mae flattered

"Sure thing. Look how easy you guess all the answers on those TV giveaway shows."

"Let's try it — just for fun," said is wife, falling into the trap "Give me five questions But don't make them too hard."

"Okay, ready?"

"Ready!"

"What state has the largest population?"

"That's easy, Texas"

"Wrong. It's New York Whose picture is on a $20 bill?"

"You have't brought one home in years How would I know? It must be a Republican President McQuinley? no, Teddy Roosevelt!"

"Wrong It's Andrew Jackson a Democrat He got on by mistake How do you spell etiquette?"

"E-t-t-i-q-u-e-te.," said Trellis Mae "And I know what it is, which is more than some husbands, I could name do"

'Wrong again. Now, can you identify Beria?"

"Of course silly It's one of those cute little hats Frenchmen wear"

"Wrong. He's an ex-Russian leader now missing Last question You can't miss this one Who said 'Give me liberty or give me death?"

"Henry Patrick! Henry Patrick!" yelled Trellis Mae

"Well, his friends called him Patrick Henry ' said Wilbur "But I'll give you half on that one—10 That's your score—10 out of 100"

"You cheated!" cried Trellis Mae "Asking me all that junk! As if anybody really cared You didn't ask me a single important question"

"Okay, ' said Wilbur coolly. ' go ahead and ask me five questions more important then Think hard now?"

"I don't have to think Ready?"

"Ready!"

"When is my mother's birthday? What is the price of butter a pound? What vegetable will give you the most vitamins for the least calories? How can I possibly make my old cloth coat last another winter? What department store is having a sale of men's $5 white shirts for $2 95 tomorrow and I'm going to buy you three they're such a bargain'"

Wilbur just stared at her, silent and slack-jawed

"Those are really important questions," said Trellis Mae "and you scored zero Another thing If I did get a divorce from you in this state, do you know how much alimony you'd have to pay?"

"No, do you?"

"Certainly," said Trellis Mae "And now just one final question If there is somebody stupid in this house about things that really matter who do you think it is?'

"No comment, ' said Wilbur although he knew the only possible answer

Severed Siamese Twins To Depart For Home Today

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Mouton Siamese twins—now normal, happy baby girls after their historic separation—will leave the hospital for their home in Lafayette today.

Catherine Anne and Carolyn Anne, daughters of Mayor and Mrs. Ashton Mouton of Lafayette are leaving here much sooner than physicians expected.

"But they have improved so rapidly, so much better than expected," explained Dr. L. L. Weissmiller, director of Ochsner Foundation Hospital. "They are completely out of danger now."

Dr. Weissmiller said the girls were completely normal and happy in every respect. They play with toys, enjoy being fondled by their nurses and have very sunny dispositions.

The girls were joined near the base of the spine at birth July 22. They shared a common lower intestinal tract while the sacrum, a part of the lower vertebrae, was fused. They also were connected in the dural sac, the covering of the spinal cord at the lower end.

A team of eight surgeons separated them Sept. 17. One staff surgeon said the survival of both girls wrote a new page in medical history. To his knowledge, both twins had never survived such an operation.

Evidence of their good health was seen in their rapid gain in weight. At birth, together they weighed 11 pounds 8 ounces. Catherine Anne now weighs 9 pounds and Carolyn Anne weighs 8 pounds 12½ ounces.

They will be brought back here periodically for checkups. More surgery on the intestinal tract is necessary to complete the operation, but Dr. Weissmiller said that is several months away.

BIG ORDER

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UP)—Kansas farmers and cattlemen ordered nearly $2,000,000 of cheap livestock feed under the agriculture department's drouth relief program.

September Fire Loss Reported

Total Placed at $465, Under 1952 Amount

Estimated fire loss in Marion last month was substantially less than for September, 1952 according to a monthly report of fire department activities issued today by Fire Chief Owen A. Sifritt.

Total estimated loss during September was $465 while a year ago it was estimated at $3,479, Chief Sifritt said. However, the number of fire runs was exactly the same with 42 for both last month and September a year ago.

Fighting last month's fires required the firemen to use 3,850 feet of one inch hose, 200 feet of one and one-half inch hose and 1,900 feet of two and one-half inch hose. Buckets of water were used to put out three fires, brooms twice, garden hose three times, one fire was smothered, fire extinguishers were used three times and a total of 87 feet of fire ladders were raised.

Total cost of department operation for the month was $13,658 with $11,990 of this amount used to pay salaries

Radio and Television

By John Crosby

Sunlit Half Hour

Ray Bolger was a tough man to land on television. He had no use for the medium until last Christmas when he gave a one-shot show that may have been the best hour of entertainment television ever saw. The letters poured in and Bolger rapidly perceived that this was a medium closer to the people than the stage or the movies or anything he'd ever experienced.

J. CROSBY

"I know this was it for me," he said. "I felt—well—a responsibility to those people."

The result was the new Bolger show, "Where's Raymond," which bowed in last Thursday (ABC-TV 8:30 p.m. EST), a wonderfully sunlit half hour of charm and laughter and Bolger. "Where's Raymond" is a situation comedy, in which Bolger plays the part of a delightfully wacky hoofer who lives with his harassed elder brother Jonathan (Allyn Joslyn) and his Aunt Angela (Claire Dubrey).

BOLGER IS A light-hearted individual who drives his brother—his business manager — nuts by giving away all his money and by appearing at the theater 30 seconds before the curtin goes up. "Why do you always appear at the theater just in time for the curtain?" asks Jonathan.

"You think I should be late?" inquired Bolger innocently.

Just why Bolger is always so late is pretty much the subject of the first show. Bolger skips along toward the theater 20 minutes away from his home, two and a half hours in advance. But almost everything on the way distracts him. He steps in for a cup of coffee and bit of flirtation with the pretty girl who runs the coffee pot.

Then, skipping down the street, he encounters a couple of kids playing marbles and instantly joins them.

"You live around here," asks one little boy.

"No, over on the next block," says Bolger.

"Yeah, I've been over there."

"Next time you're over there," says Bolger, 'break up your trip. Spend the night with us."

AND HE DANCES off down the street. Presently he encounters a lady mailing a letter. He tips his hat and assures her gravely: "I think you've done the right thing."

Presently he's following a girl who looks from the back like Alice Mosby with whom he went to school. It wasn't Alice Mosby. Then he bumps into an old school friend and they get into a long, involved slightly idiotic conversation about Alice Mosby and all the other girls at school — who they married, who were the ones who wore the dirty saddle shoes, and which was which.

This wound up with the two men going up to Pelham Bay Park to settle a bet by asking one of the girls. Wrong girl.

Then Bolger, having chewed up his two and a half hours, winds up sprinting on foot through New York's subway system and miles of underground tunnel, pops out of a manhole just in front of the stagedoor, shouting over his shoulder: "Thanks for the boost" and gets on stage just as the curtain rises to sing and dance an exuberantly sad little number about his difficulty getting girls. Then he dances out of the stagedoor, down the steps and down the street, pausing long enough to shout down the manhole: "I made it!"

COMEDY AS WACKY as this could be unbearably painful if it fell into the wrong hands. Fortunately, it was tailored expressly for Bolger whose personality is slightly out-of-this - worldy, anyhow. The whole thing has the galety and sweetness and innocence of modern dress fantasy, a mood and atmosphere completely different from every other comedy on the air.

I think also that some low bows are due the writers, William Bowers and Jean Holloway, for their impudent dialogue; to the director, Marc Daniels, for his light-fingered directing, and to the producer, Jerry Bresler, for whatever producers do which is something I've never figured out.

CHINESE YOUNGSTERS PROTEST. Sober-faced Chinese school children who, with an estimated 1,000 Chinese participated in a Seoul, South Korea, demonstration protesting deaths of three Chinese and North Korean POWs at the hands of Indian troops during a riot of anti-Communist captives in the Korean demilitarized zone, display one of their signs which reads: "Stop Indian Killing of Anti-Communist POWs."

Whaley Stauffer Caprino and Harper are all linemen while Jones is the only backfield man missing

The visitors will bring a record of three wins and a single loss into the game The Pirates tabbed as the favorite to top the Columbus City League title have rolled by Columbus St Charles 34-6 Columbus East 14-7 and Columbus South 35-6 Their only loss was a 25-2 whipping administered by powerful Steubenville

Coached by Dave Parks, the Central outfit depends mainly on a power game and will give the Harding defense its stiffest test of the campaign Parks runs his team almost exclusively from a short punt formation and pounds the center of the line with 190-pound Joe Morland and 160-pound Gene Bennett The rest of the backfield is rounded out by Don Brooks, 150 pounds, and George Ankrum, 145

Bennett is the big gun He leads the team in scoring with four of its 12 touchdowns He along with Morland, handles the major part of the ball carrying

The loss to Steubenville was in the opening game but the Central team has snapped back to show a steady improvement It reached its scoring peak last week with the 35-point splurge against South

Harding also reached its high point of the season last week by rolling by Fostoria in a Buckeye League game 40-6

Graham Leads Passers in Pro Football Race

Harding meets Columbus Central here Friday night in its homecoming game and Prexy fans are looking forward to a repeat of the last two games between the schools Last year sparked by John McKinstry and Chris Brady, the Prexies rolled to a 38-7 win

SHORT

But two years ago the Presidents won a game fans still remember The two the game in which Jerry Rutherford made his first offensive start of the season Hopalong Cassidy raced into a Harding tackle to lead the team to a 26-19 win

The Pirates led by Howard Hopalong Cassidy raced into a 12-0 lead at the end of the first period Russell then took over Before the smoke of battle had cleared he had racked up two touchdowns and set up two others while tagging the ball for 221 yards

He needed assistance from the field when a bad leg knocked him in the final frame After the Pirates had scored twice in the first period once on a 44-yard Cassidy to Ted Alexander pass in the first minute and later on a four-yard plunge by Cassidy Russell led the Prexies back into the game with 13 points in the second period He scored one on a 23-yard run and one on a 24-yard dash to give Harding a 13-12 lead at the half

Cassidy hit Bill Hamilton with a 25-yard pass in the second quarter in the third period but Harding came back with another score set up by Russell and Chris Brady late in the game

After the game Hamilton who played end defensively and backed up the line on defense called Russell the hardest running back he had seen in two years of varsity action Cassidy who currently is grabbing headlines at Ohio State termed the Harding ace the best breaker in the Central's hopes were concerned

In last year's stomp at Columbus John McKinstry scored three times Chris Brady once and Guy Ballinger only one of the four who returned this year scored the final TD

In the past two seasons Harding has racked up 64 points against the Pirates while allowing 26 The expected capacity homecoming crowd will be expected the size of Crumley Field and people will have to decide how they want to get there after that Don't forget the game Friday

Giants in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — The New York Giants arrived by plane today for their 14-game baseball series in Japan and without even warming up—much less tipping Toy Dumonet allowed as how he would win all of them

The Giants open Saturday against the highly regarded—in Japan anyway—Tokyo Giants The game is a sellout of the 35,000 seats

Barons Begin League Action Tonight

READY FOR OPENER The Marion Barons will make their initial appearance in the International Hockey League tonight at the Coliseum Pictures above just after a practice session are the team members

Mayor Harold Robinson will help open the season by taking part in the opening faceoff at center ice The Barons will be meeting the defending league champions the Cincinnati Mohawks

Coach Heller predicts that the Mohawks will be hard to beat again They have most [illegible] ing up any player to [illegible] said Capt Ott Heller

The Yankees are set to have a Negro player but they're not going to jump me up for excitation

"We are not adverse to having a Negro player but he must be good enough to win a place on the Yankee When the time comes when we feel we have a chance of a player we will be only too glad to have him

Apparently the Yankees think they have that kind of a player in Power and Howard They have no doubt about Howard's ability as a defensive outfielder His question is whether he can hit big league pitching

Power on the other hand is a fine hitter but Manager Casey Stengel is not certain where he will play Yankee home [illegible] the Texan seems Power played at first third and left field Some Yankee scouts however must be sold playing in the Others believe he is best at third [illegible]

Yankees Break Color Barrier, Call Up Eight

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — The world champion New York Yankees for the first time in their 51-year old major league history have Negros on their roster today

The Yankees became the 11th big league club to acquire a Negro player yesterday when they announced the purchase of Vic Power and Elston Howard from their Kansas City farm club of the American Assn The pair together with six other hopefuls from Kansas City and Birmingham will join the parent club at the spring training camp in St Petersburg Fla., next February

A great deal of attention will be placed on the pair especially Power who is regarded in some quarters as ready for the big leagues as Fox Brick as 1952 Power 23 is a strong right handed hitter who led the American Association batting this season Besides hitting .349 the muscled outfielder paced the circuit with 217 hits and 324 total bases

Howard 22 although not a robust 6-1 hitter as Power is regarded by several Yankee scouts as the better player He is an outfielder as fast but a fine throwing arm and is a ballhawk He batted .286 in 139 games

Power's outstanding work in the minors put the Yankees very much on the spot early in Spring Thus never did a Negro player on their roster and rumors spread that they never intended to have one De spite the pressure to bring up Power Yankee General Manager George Weiss stoutly maintained the time Negro was not ready

I won't be pressured into bring

St. Mary Seeking Fourth; Meets Columbus School

Columbus St Mary will be out to better a .500 win-loss record when it entertains the local St Mary squad Friday night

Friday's hosts got off to a bad start this season dropping their first two games 25-0 to Dover St Joseph and 24-6 to Mt Vernon But the Ramblers have hit the winning road in their past two contests beating the Boys Industrial School 13-6 and blanking Columbus Holy Cross 12-0

For the first time this year Bob Robbins Irish will be going in the game without a serious weight disadvantage Columbus offensive line averages only 156 the backfield 148 The defensive team has an average weight of 155

In the offensive backfield will be Quarterback Bill Poulin 130 Bernie Vogel 170 and Ronnie Allen 135 at the halfback slots and Co-Captain Bill Hallsheimer 155 at full

Neville doesn't worry too much about a two-platoon system His only changes on defense find Dick Koch 150 coming in at right guard Bob Schiebeck, 145 taking over at right tackle and Ricky Bond 130 replacing Paulhus in the backfield

Last year the locals shut out Columbus 12-0 on third period touchdowns by Butch Merchant and Ted Kilbury

Kickoff time Friday night is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Jones Field south of Columbus on the Groveport Pike

Duke Player Named Week's Leading Back

NEW YORK (AP)—Jerry Barger Duke's regular quarterback as a freshman two years ago and a benchwarmer since then shook the spectators out of his football pants at Saturday and then shook Purdue with a brilliant all-around performance

The result was that Barger was named today as The Associated Press Back of the Week In addition he appears to have won back the regular starting position from Worth Lutz whose injury gave Barger his chance to shine against Purdue

Barger's performance which included scoring the winning touchdown with six seconds to play, gave him unanimous votes from Maryland Boston University and a pair of Illinois stars J C Caroline and Mickey Bates in the opinions of the sports writers and broadcasters participating in The Associated Press poll

Lutz was another double duty quarterback who followed Jack Scarbath into that position played only 37 minutes against Georgia But in that time he completed 7 of 10 passes for 148 yards including two for touchdowns He scored twice himself

Caroline and Bates divided the offensive and scoring chore in Illinois upset of Ohio State Caroline gained 192 yards and made a touchdown Bates picked up 117 yards and four touchdowns

OSU Outcoached

Fans Moan, Hayes Won't Alibi Bucks' 41-20 Loss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rabid Ohio Sate football rooters got out the crying towel a little early this year.

"I" trouble, the old Buckeye nemesis, came around after only two consecutive victories this season. This time it was Illinois' touchdown twins, J. C. Caroline and Mickey Bates, who put the skids to a winning streak—however short—and put the scent of roses farther away.

But the 41-20 plastering Illinois handed the Buckeyes Saturday obviously upset the planning of Buckeye backers, who talk constantly of championships and Rose Bowls.

Earl Flora, sports editor of The Ohio State Journal, quoted one fan as saying he had "really been taken in" by Ohio State.

"I've followed them for 27 years," the fan was quoted. "But this year they looked like the best ever. It'll take me two days to cancel all the hotel and train arrangements I had lined up for the Rose Bowl trip in December."

But most sports writers in this football hotbed — used to such annual upsets in Big Ten football—merely looked ahead to a seven-game Western Conference schedule and observed the Bucks still can make the Rose Bowl—by winning their last five contests against Wisconsin, Northwestern, Michigan State, Purdue and Michigan.

Last year the "I" trouble was Iowa, which baffled the Bucks through a shocking 8-0 defeat and killed off Ohio's Rose Bowl aspirations.

The year before Indiana ran through the Buckeyes in a 32-10 victory. Each time Ohio State was an overwhelming favorite.

Mike Takacs, Ohio State guard from Massillon, said Saturday as he trudged into the silence of the Buckeye dressing room:

"That's what makes the Big Ten the best conference in the country."

Coach Hayes said much the same thing. "People must remember," Hayes told a reporter, "that any Big Ten team is capable of beating any other Big Ten team. We have upsets like this year after year—last year Illinois did it to Michigan and we'll have them again."

Hayes told a luncheon meeting after the Illinois upset:

"We have no apologies or alibis. Illinois definitely was the better team. Their players outplayed us, and their coaching staff outcoached us, just as we outcoached theirs the previous two years."

His team is in "pretty bad" shape physically. Hayes said. "But we'll just have to pick up and start over. Illinois ran over us, but maybe we can do some running of our own from here on in."

Morral Baseballers Sink New Bloomington

Morral held onto its share of top spot in the Marion County Baseball League Tuesday with a 25-7 win over New Bloomington, its third in four starts, at Morral.

Junior Bell and Manfried Saxton combined to hold the losers to nine hits while Morral was banging out 18. Bell was lifted in the first frame when the second New Bloomington batter hit a line drive which Bell attempted to snag with his bare hand, injuring it. The liner resulted in a split at the back of his first and second fingers.

Charles Rice was behind the plate for Morral. Johnson started for New Bloomington with Schwaderer behind the plate and both exchanged positions in the fifth inning.

Rice with three singles, Jim Shifflet with a home run and pair of singles, Saxton with a homer, triple and single, and John Craycraft with a homer and two singles paced Morral's 18-hit attack. Brinkley, Schwaderer and Gracely each had two safeties for the losers.

Morral is at Pleasant Tuesday to complete its Marion County League play.

Green Camp Baseball Team Blasts Pleasant

Green Camp's baseballers, behind Louis Finch's hurling, won their third victory in four Marion County Baseball League starts Tuesday with an 18-0 shutout over Pleasant. Darkness ended the game after five innings.

Finch allowed only one hit, a single by Rupp through the box in the fifth inning. Meanwhile his mates were punching out 10 hits and taking advantage of 10 walks and five Pleasant errors.

Al Stover caught for Green Camp. Leffler, Freshour and Peacock were on the mound for Pleasant and Owings was behind the plate.

Mervin Stover, Alvin Stover, Louis Finch and Jack Mulvain, each with two hits, paced the defending county champions' hitting attack. A triple was included among Al Stover's two safeties.

Green Camp closes its league season Friday at Meeker.

Cross Country Runners Down Fremont Team

Gene Monroe, Harding's cross country team co-captain, ran the fastest race of the year in Marion Tuesday when he led his team mates to a 15-49 victory over Fremont at the Marion Country Club course. It marked Harding's third win of the season.

Monroe completed the course in 10:39. His mark was only four seconds over John Ashworth's Harding record set in 1951 and but nine seconds over Jack Blackburn's 1952 course record of 10:30.1.

The Prexies scored a perfect low by taking the first six places and were one place away from a 15-50 shutout score. A total of 25 boys notched letter points in beating Fremont's fifth man and eight of the Harding runners breaking 12 minutes were sophomores and juniors.

Hugh Kinnamon, co-captain of the Harding team, paced Ben Dozier, Allen Green and Dick Bolinger in with good times and there was no pressure on the race after the first mile. Dallas Foos, a senior, ran his best race to finish sixth. Roger Ward, a junior, also marked up his best performance but lost the seventh position in the sprint to Fremont's first man, Gribber.

Coach Ken Somerlot's runners travel to Beacon Light Golf Course in Columbus Thursday to challenge Columbus South's cross country runners and on Saturday the locals will participate in the first Bowling Green Relays. Harding's cross country team will sell "Mums" at the Homecoming game between Columbus Central and Harding Friday night.

Meet results follow: Monroe (H) 10:39; Kinnamon (H) 11:08; Dozier (H) 11:09.5; Green (H) 11:13; Bolinger (H) 11:32; Foos (H) 11:40; Gribber (F) 11:43; Ward (H) 11:45; Mull (H) 11:46; Hartman (H) 11:47; Beal (F) 11:48; Huntsman (H) 11:49; Thomas (H) 11:52; Rutherford (H) 11:53; Williams (H) 11:55; Mories (H) 12:01; Metz (H) 12:06; Hopkins (H) 12:10; Huffman (H) 12:16; Fogle (H) 12:23; Condron (H) 12:34; Davis (H) 12:43; Dutton (H) 12:44; Wertz (H) 12:46; Kaelber (H) 12:47; Rupp (F) 12:47; Lawless (H) 12:57; Prior (H) 12:59.

Heavies To Clash In Television Bout

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dan Bucceroni and Jimmy Slade, both looking for a shot at the heavyweight title, and Rocky Marciano, the guy who holds it, enter the ring at the same time tonight at the St. Louis Arena.

Bucceroni, the Philadelphia butcher boy, and Slade will be the slugging principals in a 10-round match. Marciano will serve as an interested third party in the televised match as referee.

Under Missouri rules the bout, scheduled for national television on CBS at 10 p. m., EST, will be decided on a 5-5, 6-4, 7-3, etc., split of 10 points for each round as determined by the referee and two judges.

Irish Reported Ready To Play In Sugar Bowl

CHICAGO (AP) — You could have heard a jaw drop at the nearby Notre Dame campus today when the subject of possible Irish participation in a post-season Sugar Bowl game was mentioned.

Only silence followed disclosure that the long-standing policy of the university against bowl games could be reversed.

The Associated Press learned reliably yesterday that, should the Irish be invited to participate in the Jan. 1 Sugar Bowl game at New Orleans, their athletic director, Ed (Moose) Krause would recommend it. It was understood that informal approaches to Notre Dame have been made.

Never before has Krause been prepared to make such a recommendation although Irish teams have received as many as seven definite bowl invitations in the past.

The final decision in this event would be up to the school's seven-man athletic board, headed by the Rev. Edmund Joyce, and the Rev. T. M. Hesburgh, Notre Dame president.

Their policy in the past has been staunchly negative.

Skill With Skillet Still Best Way To Catch Man

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Catherine Hunter, head of the University of Tulsa's homemaking department says being handy with a skillet is still the best way to trap a man and she has figures to prove it.

Out of 105 who have majored in home economics at the school in the last five years, 103 are married, one is engaged, and the other is teaching home economics, she says.

Indians Land Infielder, Two New Pitchers

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians traded outfielder Mike Lutz and an undisclosed amount of money today to their farm team at Indianapolis for infielder Sam Dente and pitchers Marion Murszewski and Don Mosi.

Dente, a shortstop, played for Boston, St. Louis, Washington and Chicago in the American League before he was bought by the Indianapolis club.

Murszewski, who won 10 and lost five at Reading last year, lives at Buffalo.

Mossi, who won 12 and lost 11 with Tulsa, lives in Redwood City, Calif.

Lutz, who lives at Warren, Ohio, has been in the Cleveland system since 1948.

ENJOY THE FIGHTS TONIGHT AT THE RITZ BAR AND GRILL . . .

Tonight Dan Bucceroni of Philadelphia and Jimmy Slade of New York, will clash in a 10 round heavyweight brawl. Bucceroni, second ranking heavyweight in the country, needs this win to get a shot at Marciano's title. Bucceroni, has won 45 bouts out of 46 starts, 25 of them by the knockout route. Slade, with 16 wins in 27 starts, is an in-and-out, or "hit and run" fighter. We predict Bucceroni to get his win in order to get a crack at Marciano's title.

Grain Quotations

CHICAGO (AP)—Minor gains and losses were posted in grains at the opening on the Board of Trade today. Dealings were rather slow.

There was little in the overnight news to provide any incentive for the market. It appeared that potential buyers were unwilling to follow the market higher after yesterday's advance.

Wheat started ⅜ cent lower to ⅛ higher, December $1.93⅜-¼, corn was ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, December $1.44¼-1.44, and oats were ⅛ higher, December 75½-⅝. Soybeans were unchanged to ¾ cent lower, November $3.07½-1¼.

East Liverpool Death Claims C. A. Smith, 86

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP)—Chester A. Smith, owner of a bus line, potteries and a 4,000 acre farm, died yesterday at 86 in nearby Chester, W. Va., a village he founded and named after an uncle.

He owned the Valley Motor Transit Co., which runs between Steubenville, Ohio, and Beaver, Pa. His Hillcrest Farm, near Chester, was noted for its apples and prize Hereford cattle. His pottery interests include the Taylor, Smith and Taylor Pottery and the Harker Pottery, both in Chester.

Smith, who started as water boy for a gas pipeline crew when he was 18, made money first in West Virginia oil drilling operations.

He once owned light and power rights for East Liverpool and Steubenville, but sold them to what is now the Ohio Power Co. in 1917.

From 1914 until 1937 when he started the bus firm, he owned the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction Co.

Another of his investments was the 55-year-old East Liverpool-Chester bridge over the Ohio River, which he sold to Ohio for $2,185,000 in 1938.

At the same time he was starting Chester, he built the Rock Springs amusement park near the village.

One of the founders of the old Pennsylvania - Ohio - Maryland baseball league, he sponsored a baseball team known as the "World Champions" which he sent around the world in 1906-09.

The uncle he named the village after was Chester Mahan.

SALESMEN
Be Our Luncheon Guest
WE OFFER A ONCE-IN-LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY
Four years ago the DICTOGRAPH CORPORATION, a name famous in American industry for more than fifty years, opened a new division. Since that time, more than 100 additional offices have been opened throughout the nation, and more than 2,000 men have found the career for which they had been looking for all their lives.

Now we are again expanding our existing operations in northern Ohio, and we are offering men of caliber a chance that comes only once in a lifetime. You must have a car, but because of our intensive training program we will be much more interested in appearance and personality than in experience

If selected you will be trained at company headquarters school for 3 days at FULL COMPANY EXPENSE and then assigned to a sales force in the Lorain-Erie-Huron Counties area where immediate average commission earnings will EXCEED $150.00 WEEKLY, and in some cases go as high as $25,000 yearly.

A luncheon will be held at 1 o'clock Sunday, October 18th, at the Harding Hotel, Marion, Ohio, at which time the whole program will be discussed in detail.

We cordially invite you to be our guest at lunch to investigate this opportunity which may be the turning point of your life.

If for reason of conference or prior appointment you cannot attend, call our office Kl. 7-2056 between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Monday.
